NEWS SUMMARY

SITUATION IN THE FAR EAST.

Field Marshal Oyama reported to Tokyo that Liao-Yang fell completely into the hands of the Japanese at 9 o'clock Sunday morning; that the Japanese casualties were believed to be heavy, and that nothing was known by the Japanese concerning conditions on the right bank of the Taitse river. Gen. Kuropatkin sent a dispatch to St. Petersburg, dated Saturday afternoon, that Gen. Stakelberg's First Siberian army corps of 25,000 men, reported Saturday as having been cut off to the westward of Liao-Yang, had been safely extricated and that the corps has succeeded in joining the main Russian body on the right bank of the river. Gen. Kuropatkin also reported that the greater portion of his army was at the time of filing the report south of Yentai, 10 miles northeast of Liao-Yang and a few miles from the Yentai mines. The Japanese had been sniping and Orloff lost 1,500 men from one regiment.

STAKELBERG EXTRICATED

Joins Kuropatkin, Who Reaches Tiehling, 18 Miles from Mukden.

RUSSIANS IN PANIC

Orloff's Command Depleted by Japanese Sniping, One Regiment Losing 1,500.

GREAT REJOICING IN TOKYO

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 4.—Gen. Stakelberg's first Siberian army corps, which was reported yesterday by Gen. Kuropatkin as having been cut off to the westward of Liao-Yang, has been safely extricated.

It is reported here this evening that Gen. Kuropatkin has arrived at Tiehling. Tiehling is 12 miles north of Yentai, on the railroad, and 18 miles south of Mukden. Yentai is 10 miles northeast of Liao-Yang.

Gen. Kuropatkin telegraphed at 7 o'clock Saturday evening that the greater portion of his army was then south of Yentai, about 10 miles northeast of Liao-Yang, and that the other portion of it was crossing the Taitse river and taking up a position on the right bank. This shows that the force left to guard Liao-Yang had succeeded in crossing the river.

This message, which was received by the emperor early Sunday morning, threw a more hopeful light on the position of the Russian army and the authorities gave sighs of relief. There was no attempt, however, to conceal the gravity of the situation in view of the absence of news regarding what happened today. It was not clear from the latest telegram whether the Russians are continuing their retreat or if they have been compelled to face their foe.

Kuropatkin Evidently Chagrined.

The gloomy report telegraphed by the Russian commander-in-chief in the early stages of the fighting of Saturday last and his bitter reproaches against Gen. Stakelberg are attributed to his chagrin over the failure of his offensive plans. The following is the full text of Gen. Kuropatkin's report:

"Today (September 3) the greater part of the Russian army, including the First Siberian army corps, is occupying positions south of the branch railway from Yentai station to the Yentai mines.

"The Japanese, although they were in the immediate vicinity of our troops today, confined themselves principally to sniping from the Chinese corn fields. Our troops, which were posted at Liao-Yang, are crossing to the right bank of the Taitse river.

"The area of operations is almost entirely covered by growing Chinese corn, which greatly impedes the movements of the troops. The retreat of Maj.-Gen. Orloff's detachment yesterday (Friday) was largely due to the fire with which the force was assailed among the millet fields. Gen. Orloff's losses were considerable, one regiment alone losing 1,500 men."

Russians Evidently in Panic.

Maj.-Gen. Orloff's detachment was guarding the left flank at Yentai. This detachment consisted of mixed European detachments and was suddenly attacked by Japanese infantry and artillery concealed in the tall Chinese corn and grass. The Russians seem to have lost their heads and to have retreated precipitately. That the Japanese inflicted great slaughter is shown by Gen. Kuropatkin's report that one of Gen. Orloff's regiments lost 1,500 men.

No details are given of the escape of Gen. Stakelberg's corps from the clutches of the enemy, but it is believed that it owes its safety to the neglect or the inability of the Japanese to follow up their advantage. Gen. Stakelberg was allowed to cross the river and came up with the main army in time to enable the shattered remnants of Maj.-Gen. Orloff's detachment to retreat. This exploit is likely to condone Gen. Stakelberg's disobedience, but unless the emperor forgives him he will have to appear before a court-martial and probably will lose his command.

The war office is able to make the reassuring statement that the Russian retreat from Liao-Yang did not involve the loss of guns, and it also declares that the abandoned stores at Liao-Yang were set on fire before the Russians crossed the Taitse river.

Russian Losses 3,200.

The Russian losses before Liao-Yang on September 2, as officially computed, were 3,200.

NITRO-GLYCERIN DEALS OUT DEATH

Five Lives Claimed in Awful Explosion in Abandoned Oil Well Derrick.

CHILDREN AMONG VICTIMS

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 4.—A premature explosion of nitro-glycerin occurred on the farm of A. L. Sterner, three miles north of this city, today. Five people were killed and three are so badly injured that it is not believed they will survive the night.

The explosion occurred at an oil well about to be abandoned. Mahlon Tookabaugh of Findlay, assisted by his two sons, Lewis and Claire, also of Findlay, together with Joseph Fox, an oil well shooter of Carey, and Lafe McCay of Findlay were engaged in removing the casing from the well.

The casing was stuck and it was decided to loosen it with a shot of nitro-glycerin. Two quarts were lowered and failing to explode, two more were lowered. This time the squib was apparently discharged, and the men began to pull up the wire with which the explosives had been lowered. When the wire was nearly all withdrawn an explosion took place which tore the entire top of the derrick to pieces.

There were several spectators, among them Ernest Wise and two children, Dorine, aged 2, and Alice, aged 14. His guest, Emanuel Irban, a Cincinnati clothier, was also in the derrick as a spectator. He was holding Dorine on his lap. Mr. Irban's head was blown off. Dorine's left arm was blown off. She died within an hour. Mahlon Tookabaugh was terribly mangled and died within 20 minutes. Joseph Fox, whose parents are said to reside at Lima, was killed instantly. Lafe McCay of Findlay had one of his legs torn off and a hole blown through his body. He died at 4 o'clock. Louis Tookabaugh had his limbs so badly mangled that it was necessary to amputate the right leg. His condition tonight is critical, as is that of Ernest Wise, who was almost similarly injured. Alice Wise has a hole two inches wide through her hip and it is not believed she will survive the night. Mrs. Mahlon Tookabaugh, who lost a husband and has a son nearly dead, was in a tent not over 100 feet away, but was not injured. Every physician in the city was summoned and was kept busy attending the injured.

POPE'S ORDER OBEYED.

Male Choir Sings Masses in the Philadelphia Cathedral.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—For the first time in the history of Philadelphia's Catholic cathedral the solemn high mass this morning was sung exclusively by male voices. This change in the regular order of music was in accordance with the order of Pope Pius X.

Although at first it was considered almost impossible to render the music without female voices, the creditable work at today's service proved beyond a doubt that the men can make good their positions.

In the Church of the Jesu a choir of nearly 40 men, under the leadership of Francis J. O'Brien, sang Weis' mass. Later in the season a number of boys' voices will be added. Another church to follow out the order of the pope is Our Mother of Sorrows, where a boy choir of 30 voices will sing its first solemn mass, with George Shortland Kampton as organist and director, the third Sunday of the month, while the requiem masses are now being sung by orphan boys from a neighboring institution.

RUSSIA IS DETERMINED TO FIGHT TO THE END

Count Cassini Has Impressed Washington Government With the Fact That No Power Can Change His Country's Attitude.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Although there are not many diplomats in Washington to stimulate the flow of gossip on international topics it is expected by government officials that the fall of Port Arthur will be followed with all sorts of reports about international mediation to bring the Russo-Japanese war to an end. Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, has lost no opportunity to impress upon the Washington government the futility of any effort by any power to bring Russia to any attitude but rigid determination to fight the war to the bitter end.

It is felt that Japan would welcome mediation at a moment when she gains possession of Port Arthur and a part or all of Manchuria. The United States has so carefully avoided all complications, even incident to the neutrality of China, that it is regarded as improbable that it will respond favorably to any suggestion from another power to join in an effort to bring the war to an end. Influences in the United States, which desire to maintain friendly relations with Russia, would probably be prompt to protest against any move which would bring about international action toward peace at a moment disadvantageous to Russia.

ELEVATED EMPLOYES PREPARE ANSWER

Will Deliver Reply to Note of August Belmont Today. Not Ultimatum.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The answer of the elevated railroad employes to the letter of August Belmont, received on Saturday, making concessions in some instances and denying others, has been prepared, and will be delivered to the president of the Interborough company today.

The answer of the men is not an ultimatum. Neither will it end the controversy. Further mutual concessions must be made before the strike crisis will be passed. The communication to Mr. Belmont acknowledges the concessions that have already been promised and recites others that the men consider necessary to a final settlement. It is intended to lead to further written interchanges of views and other conferences.

Conferences between the grand officers of the locomotive engineers, Warren S. Stone, Charles Wilson, the vice grand chairman of the locomotive firemen and W. F. Mahon, the head of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Electrical Employes, together with the executive board of the Manhattan division of the elevated, were carried on today and the note to Mr. Belmont then was framed.

CANDIDATES GO TO CHURCH.

Neither President Roosevelt Nor Judge Parker Have Visitors at Their Homes on Sunday.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 4.—President Roosevelt expects to remain at Sagamore Hill today, taking, perhaps, a horseback ride in the vicinity. As usual Sunday was a quiet day at Sagamore Hill. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by several of their children, attended service at Christ Episcopal church. No official visitors were received by the president during the day.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—There were no visitors at Rosemount today. Nothing disturbed Judge Parker's quiet Sunday. He made his usual trip to Kingston to church. There was a continuous procession of sightseers, but most of them observed the candidate's wish that the grounds be not invaded on Sundays.

Prince Frederick Betrothed.

ALTONA, PRUSSIA, Sept. 4.—During a dinner which Emperor William and the Empress Victoria Augusta gave at the Kaiserhof tonight to the leading officials of Schleswig-Holstein, the emperor announced the betrothal of Crown Prince Frederick William to the Duchess Cecilia, sister of the reigning grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. The announcement was received with great enthusiasm.

FIVE MEET DEATH IN ERIE'S WATERS

En Route to Yacht Races on the Lake When Launch Upsets and All Go Down.

CRIED FOR HELP IN DARKNESS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 4.—Five men were drowned in Lake Erie last night, as the result of the capsizing of a 22-foot naphtha launch in which they were en route from Cleveland to Vermilion to attend yacht races at the latter place today:

THE DEAD:

JOHN D. BEGLEY, Cleveland.
ALBERT G. TREIBER, Cleveland.
PAUL HARTNER, Cleveland.
JULES HURTIG, Cleveland.
MAX HURTIG, New York.

The first known of the drowning was when the launch floated to the beach near Edgewater park late last night. Cries for help had been heard by campers along the shore, but no assistance could be given in the darkness.

The launch is believed to have been caught in a trough of the lake, a heavy wind prevailing during the night.

When the boat was found it was stripped of everything that could serve as a buoy for the occupants, and there was hope that some of the party might have remained afloat, but today's developments indicate that all went down to death. The body of Begley was found on the beach this afternoon.

WOMAN KILLS OFFICER AND STANDS LENGTHY SIEGE

Captured After Four Hours' Battle by Use of Deadly Germicide Fumes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—In a fit of insanity today Mrs. Minnie McKenzie tried to kill her husband at her home in Falcon street, East Boston, shot and killed Patrolman Alfred M. Sturdivant and barricaded herself in the front room of her tenement, where she remained for more than five hours, standing off a squad of 10 policemen. She was finally captured by the use of a disinfectant injected through holes in the barricaded doors.

Mrs. McKenzie became violently insane soon after the dinner hour and, securing a revolver, began shooting at her husband. None of the shots took effect. Ten patrolmen were sent to the house. Mrs. McKenzie retired to a front room, locked the door and barricaded it with a bureau. The officers succeeded in getting the door partially open, when the woman fired four shots, three striking Patrolman Sturdivant. He died in a hospital. A bullet struck Patrolman John Burke, but the wound is not serious.

At 9 o'clock tonight a quantity of germicide was forced into the room, and a few minutes later the frenzied woman succumbed to the fumes. She was locked up while still unconscious.

PLAYING AT WAR.

Imitating Events in Far East With the United States Troops.

CORPS HEADQUARTERS, GAINESVILLE, VA., Sept. 4.—The strength of each maneuver was doubled today by the arrival of 12,000 militiamen. Skirmish lines will be established tomorrow, and at midnight Monday Gen. Grant will endeavor to force the Brown army, under Gen. Bell, back through Thoroughfare Gap.

Today two trains, the third section of the Fifth Massachusetts and the second section of the First Florida, were emptied in the record-breaking time of two minutes. The detraining operation took usually from 4 to 8 minutes. A saluting battery was put in place at corps headquarters today, and governors of states will be given 19 guns on their arrival in camp. The first gun of the mimic war was fired from this battery at sunset tonight.

Final suggestions from Col. Wagoner, as chief umpire, were transmitted to division commanders today.

FOURTEEN DIE IN SMALL FIRE

Women and Children Are Burned to Death in New York Tenement.

LADDER FIRE ESCAPE

Men Sleeping on Roof Make Their Escape and Helpless Women Burn.

CONTRACTOR'S BAD WORK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Fourteen persons were killed and nearly a score injured in a fire in a five-story double tenement in Attorney street, early this morning. It was one of the worst fires in the loss of human lives that has occurred on the East Side in several years, although the property loss was slight. The dead include four women, one man and nine children, ranging in age from 3 months to 12 years.

The dead are: Rosa Eichler, Rebecca Eichler, Sadie Feuerberg, Annie Feuerberg, Minnie Feuerberg, Herman Feuerberg, Philip Kirschner, Sarah Kurz, Mrs. Yetta Miller, Joseph Miller, Ossac Miller, Sarah Miller, Yetta Miller and an unidentified boy.

The small number of men among the killed and injured was due to the fact that most of the men who lived in the building were asleep on the roof. Those on the roof escaped over neighboring roofs. Meanwhile the members of their families who had remained in their rooms found escape cut off.

The fire started about 3 o'clock this morning. When the firemen reached the scene some of the tenants were jumping from the windows and from the ends of fire escapes that reached only to the second floor; others were crouching in the smoke in the small rooms and narrow halls.

A number of daring rescues were made by firemen and police and the conditions under which they worked were unusual and difficult. The loss of life was due chiefly to the fact that alterations were being made in the tenement building. The basement and first floor, the latter about six feet above the sidewalk level, had both been cut through, the front and rear walls having been removed, and the upper floors being supported by steel beams. The exit from the upper floors was by way of a small stepladder. Twelve families lived in the house, and it is said that the tearing away of the lower floor was done so quickly that certain tenants who wished to move from the building were unable to get their furniture out and thus were compelled to remain. The work of alteration had necessitated the partial removal of the fire escapes and when the fire began the panic-stricken tenants found fire escapes that led to the second floor and no farther.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a lamp that had been left to light the hall on the second floor. It was soon extinguished and the search for the dead began. Most of the dead were found on the two upper floors.

While the search of the building was going on four firemen were at work on a fourth floor balcony, when it gave way. Another fireman on the balcony on the floor below was also carried down and was probably fatally injured. The other four were badly hurt, but will recover.

Leon Sober, an owner of the building, Morris Levine, the agent and Henry Breitman, the superintendent, were arrested tonight and were charged with criminal negligence.

MOB ATTACKS DETECTIVES AND ONE IS INJURED

First Blood of Hoop Strike—Non-Unionists Unable to Leave Train at Girard or Youngstown.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 4.—The first blood of the strike was spilled at Girard last night. John Jones, a Pinkerton detective, with three other detectives, was boarding a car at Girard to rescue three non-unionists who were unable to leave the Pennsylvania train either at the lower plant or at Girard, when a mob attacked them and Jones was struck on the back of the head. The wound was attended to at Girard, and later the man came to Youngstown. Six Amalgamated men, deputized by the chief of police of Girard, aided in quelling the riot. J. F. Schandt of Sharpsburg gave up his mace and badge to the strikers. The non-unionists were unable to leave the train until it reached Warren. One man was induced to leave the Upper plant of the company this morning. Tomorrow or Tuesday at the latest may see the lower plant running.

Four Hundred Guns Point on Port Arthur.

CHEFOO, Sept. 4, 8:15 p. m.—(Special Cable, Herald Copyright.)—Since August 27, when the general attack on Port Arthur took place, quietness has prevailed there. It has been ascertained that the attacking forces numbered 45,000, consisting of three divisions, the First, Ninth and Eleventh. The Ninth suffered the most. The army is being heavily reinforced. Four hundred guns are being mounted on the Japanese positions for bombardment, with a view to silencing the Russian guns before the infantry renews the advance. One large naval gun at Liatishan has burst. This indicates that the life of similar weapons is growing precarious.

Runs Inter-State Saloon.

CUMBERLAND, MD., Sept. 4.—Refused a saloon license at Hendricks, W. Va., Charles Gillespie built a town opposite several years ago and threw a bridge across the stream. Refused a license in that county this year, he purchased land in Garrett county, Md., and will open a saloon a short distance from the towns of Thomas and Henry, W. Va. He paid $31,000 for the land, and says he will not sell for less than $100,000.

CHOPPED WAY INTO CHURCH

Father Bekavac Held Mass in Defiance of a Desperate Mob.

HE WAS ATTACKED

Men and Women Were Beaten Off by Squads of Police and Detectives.

THE BISHOP WILL ACT TODAY

After hewing his way into the church with an ax, the Rev. Father Bosiljko Bekavac of St. Nicholas' Croatian Roman Catholic church, Allegheny, held early mass yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, while 1,000 of his former congregation awaited him outside and made frantic efforts to assault him at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Upon notice from Bishop Phelan that Father Bekavac should conduct mass at 8 o'clock and 10 o'clock yesterday, following the closing of the church several weeks ago, the police, anticipating trouble, were well represented. Superintendent Campbell, Assistant Superintendent John Glenn, Detectives "Ted" Johnston and John King, and Lieutenants of Police John Bopp and John Bolland, with Capt. Wilson and 50 patrolmen, were on hand shortly after 7 o'clock.

At this hour a mob began to collect in front of the building, and as its numbers increased to 1,000 the excitement reached a high pitch. Shortly before 8 o'clock Father Bekavac left the parish house to enter the church, while the crowd hooted him. The doors of the building had been nailed fast by the dissenters, who also held the keys of the church. Returning to the parish house Father Bekavac secured an ax and applied it to one of the church doors, while the police in a body aided him to force it down under the weight of their bodies. Two other doors leading into the church were then opened from within.

Only 50 Heard Mass.

Having information that the rioters had 200 pick handles concealed with which to attack the police, the officers were at once distributed along the street and systematically proceeded to clear the thoroughfare. Meanwhile some 50 of a normal congregation of 1,500 summoned sufficient courage to attend the early mass.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the police awaited Father Bekavac to escort him to the parish house. At this stage the mob became bolder, and, spurred on by one or two women leaders, ascended the stone steps to the church door and, as the priest appeared, shouted threats of vengeance, while women and men alike called upon their followers to attack him. Mrs. Kate Gerbin of 1403 Saw Mill alley, carrying her daughter's infant, together with Mrs. Mary Webenitz of East Ohio street, were in the van of the agitators and were at once placed under arrest by Detective Johnston.

Pulling their maces the police beat back the flood of humanity that was frantically fighting its way up the church steps, urging violence upon the priest. Meanwhile, Father Bekavac had hurriedly gained the parish house and firmly entrenched himself there. During the melee the police arrested Joseph Novakovich of 22 Summit street, Kosto Meic of 842 East Ohio street and Thomas Coranich of 1180 Saw Mill alley, who, with the two women, were taken to Central station.

Police Had Headquarters.

At the 10 o'clock or high mass the police had full command of the situation. The crowd had held several conferences but whatever plans were laid were of no avail, and shortly before the appearance of the priest the police had scattered the crowd to a safe distance from the church. This mass opened with a congregation of 125 and others later, assured of their safety, soon increased the number to 250. During the services the police took possession of the rooms of the National Croatian society, 1324 East Ohio street, adjoining the church, and established temporary headquarters, with telephone communication with Central station. Superintendent Campbell, Assistant Superintendent Glenn and Detective "Ted" Johnston sat through the mass, fearing some of the agitators might have entered the church under guise of peaceful members of the congregation, while a half-dozen patrolmen held the lobby of the church and an equal number of officers were stationed upon the steps, confining the congregated mob to safe limits.

The Rev. Father Bosiljko Bekavac.

Notwithstanding all these precautions several of the bolder agitators became involved with the officers and Frank Bossen of Saw Mill alley and Mike Polowich of Lumberman's alley were sent to join their comrades in Central station. There was no demonstration at the conclusion of this mass.

During the service Father Bekavac referred to the demonstration by stating the church desired only the support good Catholics and that good Catholics ere only such as obeyed the mandates f the bishop and priest of their church. He asked them to attend services in a peaceful manner. He deplored the factional disturbance in the parish and thought that the church would be the gainer by the loss of any members of the congregation who would violate church orders.

Father Bekavac was seen in the parish house after the service by a Gazette reporter, and made the following statement:

"This trouble has been caused because motives pointing to the individual gain of certain members of the congregation were not allowed to prevail. Charges have been brought against me, alleging that I have been charging exorbitant fees for burial and baptismal services. These charges are not true. They were investigated by Father Tobin who, after taking testimony, stated that my charges were less than those of his own church. Repeatedly have I announced from the pulpit that I would gladly perform services free of any cost to any members of my congregation who were unable to pay the rates, but the rates at no time have been exorbitant. I have been charging but $7 for funeral services, including prayers at the church and the grave, and the tolling of the church bells. This is less than the majority of curches charge, the uniform rate being $10.

"Bishop Canevin has thoroughly investigated the trouble in my church and assured me last Friday that, if there was another demonstration, he would close the church for one year. In such case I would be sent to another church in the diocese to officiate temporarily. I will meet Bishop Canevin by appointment at 10 o'clock Monday morning, when the trouble of today will be discussed and the question as to whether or not services will be held in the church next Sunday."

Shortly after noon yesterday, Father Bekavac announced that there would be no vesper service at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, as had been announced. The police were notified and withdrew. At this hour a crowd had again gathered in front of the church, but soon learning of the postponement, dispersed.

Erwin Coramch, Steve Morgo and Joseph Mokkisch were arrested in front of St. Nicholas' church last night and charged with disorderly conduct. It is said the trio were making threats against the Rev. Father Bekavac.

Director Thomas B. Scandrett of the Allegheny department of public safety yesterday ordered the release of the 11 Croatians arrested for raising trouble at St. Nicholas' Roman Catholic church. They were allowed to go on their own recognizance for a hearing.

IMMIGRANTS HELD UP.

Cheap Rate Brings Horde of Undesirables into Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Aboard the steamship Westernland, which arrived here today from Liverpool, were 650 of the most miserable candidates for American citizenship that have ever come into this port. They came over under the $7.50 rate and represented the poorest classes of all the big cities of Europe.

One hundred and fifty were held up when the immigration officers made their first inspection of the lot. Most of these were absolutely penniless, while the others were suffering from diseases of various kinds, the chief one being trachoma. This number was afterward reduced to 65, when relatives of the others had proved that they would provide for them and prevent them from becoming public charges. Sixty-five, however, is the largest number out of one ship's batch that have ever been deported from Philadelphia.

SMITH CAUGHT IN UTAH.

Charged With Forging Check for Large Sum on Brownsville Bank.

UNIONTOWN, PA., Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Word was received here today of the capture in Salt Lake City, Utah, of Arthur E. Smith, charged with forging the name of J. S. Douglass to a check presented at the Second National bank of Brownsville, Tuesday, August 9, and receiving $5,952 in certified checks.

He at first denied his identity, but a full description was sent from Uniontown, which led to positive identification. Smith was going under an assumed name and refuses to return to Pennsylvania without requisition papers, which District Attorney A. E. Jones will ask Gov. Pennypacker to grant at once.

It is thought that Smith has secured only $862 of the sum for which he had certified checks, two checks not having been returned to the Brownsville bank.

STRENUOUS COURTSHIP.

Allegheny Slav Gives Thrashing to Three Brothers of His Sweetheart.

The courtship of Martin Tiskavosky, a Slav of Pike street, Allegheny, ended in a fight last night that caused a riot call to be sent in from Voegtly street. Tiskavosky has been paying attention to Maggie Mazurwinsky of 231 Voegtly street.

The girl's brothers, John, Joseph and James, were at home whiling away the time by drinking from a keg of beer. Shortly before 10 o'clock the brothers conceived a dislike for their visitor and ordered him out of the house. Instead of going Tiskavosky threw the trio out into the street unaided. Some of the neighbors took a hand in the fight and a riot call was sent to Central station.

No one suffered any injuries other than blackened eyes, and the three brothers and Tiskavosky put up forfeits for a hearing this morning.

COMBES REMAINS FIRM.

Says He Has No Intention of Patching Up Peace With Rome.

AUXERRE, FRANCE, Sept. 4.—Premier Combes made an important speech here today. In retracing the policy of the government during the last two years he claimed that the municipal and departmental elections had given full evidence that it was approved by the country.

Regarding the future, the premier said that he would continue to carry out his policy for national sovereignty and the complete laicization of society. The religious power had openly torn up the concordat and it was not his intention to try to mend it.

FIERCE FIGHTING BY BOTH ARMIES

Japanese and Russians Battle With Desperation About Liao-Yang.

CZAR'S MEN PRAISE THEIR FOE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

YENTAI, Sept. 3.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The battle continued with great fierceness up to Friday. The Russians evacuated Liao-Yang, but got the bulk of their rolling stock across the river safely. A new station was established several versts north of the Taitse river, as was also a general Red Cross station.

On September 2, the fourth day of the fight at Liao-Yang, the battle commenced at dawn on both sides of the Taitse river. The Japanese advanced toward the Yentai mines, which were defended by 12 battalions. This force was giving way, preparatory to retiring on its rear position, when fresh men were brought up which enabled the Russians to retain their former position. From the left bank of the Taitse the Japanese persistently bombarded Liao-Yang, their shells reaching as far as the railway station.

The Russian troops on September 1 occupied the main line, where the Japanese assaults were persistent and deadly, and the Russians not only stood off the attack, but took the offensive, broke the Japanese lines and occupied a village in front of the position. The Russians pushed forward and the Japanese fled, leaving piles of corpses. The Russian losses were very heavy.

On the evening of September 2 a large Japanese force occupied the right bank of the Taitse river. It is reported to consist of the whole of Gens. Kuroki's and Nodzu's armies, Oku alone remaining south of Liao-Yang. The Russians praise the bravery of the Japanese.

The fight of August 31 continued in a terrific manner until after dark. The Japanese maintained a storm of artillery fire on the Russian positions and pressed the Russian right flank and the southern front, but were driven back by the infantry.

On September 1, owing to the extreme fatigue, all were quiet until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when 42 guns opened simultaneously on Liao-Yang and continued until dark. Only four persons were killed and under cover of a sharp cannonade, the evacuation of the town was commenced.

FIGHTS STOCK EXCHANGE.

Claims Members of Boston Board Are Concerned in Bucket Shop Swindle.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Angry because the Boston stock exchange insisted that his name be erased from the sign of the firm of Arnold & Co., which was Lawson, Arnold & Co., before his voluntary retirement to wage war on the Standard Oil interests, Thomas W. Lawson has written "an open letter to the Boston stock exchange," in which he charged the public was being robbed by bucketshops which he said, "secure a large number of selling orders from their victims. They then have some of the stock exchange members sell the stock in question at a fictitiously low price, when they notify their victims by false statements, only made possible through the connivance of the members, that each one's stock has been sold at the extreme low, fictitious price."

CONCESSIONS TO JEWS BY RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 5.—An imperial ukase has been published making provisional amendments pending a general revision of the whole legislation concerning Jews. The amendments grant greatly extended residential privileges to the higher class of the educated Jews and permit certain indicated Jews, or those who have served in the army, to reside in any part of the empire. The new regulations, however, do not apply to districts where special regulations exist for the circumscription of Jews.

NEW CASTLE, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—J. W. Wright, a Baltimore & Ohio railroad brakeman, was beaten and robbed of his cash and watch late last night near the New Castle Junction. Wright had drawn $175 from the company on Saturday, but before going to the Junction to take a train for Cleveland he left all but $10 with his wife.

ceived a telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin asking for the immediate dispatch to the far east of the Sixth army corps.

Maj.-Gens. Alexieff, Gerngross, Rennenkampff and Fock have been promoted to lieutenant generals for distinguished services in the face of an enemy; and Lieut.-Gen. Linevitch has been made a general of infantry for meritorious services.

The emperor has conferred upon Maj. Gen. Mistchenko a gold-mounted sword set with brilliants, inscribed: "For bravery in repelling the Japanese attacks of July 23, 26 and 27."

TOKYO, Sept. 4.—Field Marshal Oyama, telegraphing at 9 o'clock this morning, says:

"After the fighting of last night and this morning Liao-Yang fell into our hands. Our casualties are believed to be very heavy. No report has been received concerning conditions on the right bank of the Taitse river."

Beyond Field Marshal Oyama's dispatch reporting the occupation of Liao-Yang, nothing further concerning the battle of Liao-Yang has reached Tokyo today.

Hinges on Kuroki's Movement.

Neither the number of Russians who succeeded in escaping northward nor the number encompassed by Gen. Kuroki's turning movement is known here. The severity of the Russian defeat hinges largely on Kuroki's movement. If successful, the number of Russian prisoners will be large. The meager reports received indicate that the soldiers of both armies went to the limit of human endurance and suffered terribly. It was impossible constantly to supply them with food and water, and the men have fought for days past starving and parched with thirst.

Although full details are lacking, the duration of the fighting, the numbers engaged and the losses so far reported indicate that Liao-Yang will prove to be one of the greatest battles of history.

The dispatch received from Field Marshal Oyama announcing the fall of Liao-Yang had the effect of cheering all of the subjects of the mikado. Throughout the rejoicings here following the earlier successes of Japanese arms at Liao-Yang, the more thoughtful people feared the results of the exposure to which the right wing of Gen. Kuroki's army was subjected, and it was held possible that the strength of the Liao-Yang fortifications would permit the withdrawal of the bulk of the Russian forces there. Even now there is doubt concerning the number of Russians who have escaped, but there is no doubt about the character of the victory at Liao-Yang.

Tokyo is brilliantly illuminated tonight, and joyful crowds are parading the streets cheering the exploits of Field Marshal Oyama and Generals Oku and Nodzu.

Dispatch Received by General Staff.

The subjoined dispatch, reporting the condition of the battle down to 9 o'clock on the night of Saturday, September 3, has been received at the headquarters of the general staff:

"The main force of the right column of the right army has advanced to the westward, leaving a small body in the neighborhod of San-Mat-Zu to cover the columns on the right.

"The center column has still been unable to carry a 131-meter height completely. The left column is in the neighborhood of Yentai, and is confronting the enemy on the 131-meter height.

"Our center and left armies are still continuing to attack the enemy on the south and west side of Liao-Yang.

"On Saturday all buildings resembling warehouses near the railway station at Liao-Yang were burned."

RETURNED A BRIDE.

Romance of a Philadelphia Maiden Who Was Long Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Eleven months ago Miss Mayme Kinder disappeared from her home in Roxborough in company with a strange woman. Now she has returned a bride, the wife of Leslie I. Coggins, a wealthy young politician and horseman of San Francisco.

Miss Kinder, in October of last year, was employed in a telephone exchange at Manayunk. With some friends she stopped one evening at a hotel near her home and there met a wealthy woman, Alice Parker, who was greatly attracted by the pretty and vivacious telephone girl. When the time came to separate, the older woman told the girl she was going to San Francisco and offered to take her along. Delighted at the prospect of the long trip across the continent, she accepted. Shortly after reaching San Francisco she became acquainted with Coggins and in a short time her marriage followed.

JAPAN SUZERAIN OF THE KOREANS

Tokyo Announces Agreement. Stevens to Be Diplomatic Adviser.

MAN OF HIGH STANDING

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

TOKYO, Sept. 5.—The government today published the text of an agreement signed at Seoul on August 22 between representatives of Japan and Korea. The agreement follows:

First, the Korean government shall engage as financial adviser to the Korean government a Japanese subject recommended by the Japanese government, and all matters concerning finance shall be dealt with after his counsel has been taken.

Second, the Korean government shall engage as diplomatic adviser to the department of foreign affairs, a foreigner recommended by the Japanese government, and all important matters concerning foreign relations shall be dealt with after his counsel has been taken.

Third, the Korean government shall previously consult the Japanese government in concluding treaties and conventions with foreign powers and in dealing with other important diplomatic affairs, such as the granting of concessions to or the making of contracts with foreigners.

The Japanese government explained the foregoing agreement as follows:

Explanation by Japan.

This agreement is nothing more than a natural and logical sequence to the protocol of February 23. It will be remembered that in this protocol the Japanese government undertook to give advice to the Korean government with regard to the improvements of administration, which advice the latter agreed to accept with full confidence. The financial embarrassment of the Korean government has in the past been a constant cause of internal trouble and the chief hindrance to the development of foreign commerce. This serious aspect of Korean administration naturally attracted the first attention of the Japanese government.

It will be remembered further that in the protocol it was stipulated that in case the welfare of the imperial house of Korea, or the territorial integrity of Korea was endangered by the aggression of a third power or by internal disturbance the Japanese government was to take the measures made requisite by the circumstance. This stipulation makes it incumbent upon Japan to exercise careful control respecting Korean diplomacy. In fact, the responsibilities devolving upon the Japanese government in consequence of this protocol of February 23, can only be discharged by possessing a consultive voice in all important questions of foreign intercourse and in assisting Korea to secure trustworthy advisers to examine on the spot questions of international concern. These measures to control Korean finance and Korean foreign intercourse do not in any way interfere with the full operation and validity of Korea's existing treaties.

No Impediment on Foreigners.

Article No. 3 is not intended to place an impediment on the ligitimate enterprise of foreigners in the sphere of commerce and industry, but is calculated to serve as a precaution against the conclusion of improvident and dangerous engagements which in the past have proved to be sources of serious complications, such as was shown conspicuously in the case of the Russian lease at Yongampho.

Durham White Stevens, counsellor of the Japanese legation at Washington, will be the diplomatic adviser to the Korean government, while M. Megata, director of the revenue bureau at Tokyo, will be Korea's financial adviser.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—At the Japanese legation here it was stated that the story given out in Tokyo was fully known to the minister and that Mr. Stevens' selection had been made after consultation with him. Mr. Stevens will leave Washington for Korea the latter part of September and will take up his residence in the capital of the country. He has been in the service of Japan for 22 years, and his standing in the diplomatic corps here is high, he being esteemed as a man of attainments and sound judgment.

STAND BY RUSSIANS LIKELY AT MUKDEN

Japanese May Find Themselves Exhausted Before a Strongly Defended City.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 5.—(2:20 a. m.)—There is bitter disappointment tonight over the situation at the front. Up to Liao-Yang the retreating from and the abandonment of positions had been expected. Had Liao-Yang been abandoned without a fight the public at least would have looked forward patiently to a decisive stand at Mukden, but after a desperate battle with victory for the instant apparently in sight, to find Liao-Yang abandoned, its immense stores captured or destroyed and the retreat continued, severely tries public confidence in the commander-in-chief.

Actual fighting seems to have been suspended for the moment, the armies probably resting after their terrific and continuous exertions of the past 10 days, the longest single battle in history and it will depend upon their respective recuperative powers as to which will first be able to resume activity.

One feature of the situation, however, has apparently been overlooked by the local critics in their recent eagerness to chronicle a decisive engagement, namely, that Kuropatkin is still in command of the railroad and that he has apparently saved a majority of the rolling stock.

The Japanese army is confessedly exhausted and is getting further from its base of supplies. If it reaches Mukden without dealing Kuropatkin a crushing blow—and Field Marshal Oyama seems to not yet be able to envelop the Russian force—the Japanese will find themselves in front of a fresh and strongly defended city.

It is possible that even now Russian reinforcements may be descending from the north to aid their retreating comrades at Mukden, which is less than two days' ordinary march distant, even ignoring the railway.

MAYOR M'CALLIN DIES SUDDENLY

He Had Been Ill for Months, but the End Was Not Expected So Soon.

HAD HELD MANY OFFICES

Ex-Mayor William McCallin died early yesterday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. James McKee, 5526 Center avenue. His death was caused by asthma from which he had been a sufferer for years. During the last three or four months he has been confined to his room.

Saturday the condition of the mayor was no worse than it had been at any time for several weeks. Toward midnight there was a sudden change for the worse and death came at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Funeral services will be held at the residence of Mrs. McKee at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. McCallin was one of the best known men in Allegheny county. Since the early 70s he had been active in politics, having held the offices of coroner, county treasurer, sheriff, mayor of Pittsburgh, police magistrate and city assessor. At the time of his death he was a clerk in the office of Controller Larkin.

Mr. McCallin was a son of James and Sophia McCallin and was born in Mercer on August 8, 1842. Three years later his father moved to Allegheny and shortly afterward took up his residence in the Seventh ward of Pittsburgh. It was there that young McCallin grew to manhood and became a power in city and county Republican politics.

President of the "Senate."

Mr. McCallin ever had a fondness for good horses and for years he was engaged in the livery business. His first stable was located in Fifth avenue, where later the traction company erected its power plant for the Fifth avenue cable line.

Mr. McCallin was a charter member and president of the Senate, a social and literary organization that flourished in the 70s. Among the other members were John B. Larkin, H. I. Gourley, Harry and George Leische, M. L. Malone, William J. Flinn, Senator William Flinn, Henry B. Rea, Harry McCullough, Profs. Ford and Andrews, John A. Sergeant, Evan Jones, Charles Hemminhouse, Thomas McMichael and Dr. Alexander E. McCandless. The club debated every question but politics.

WILLIAM M'CALLIN.
Reproduced from a Photograph Taken While He Was Mayor of Pittsburgh.

Always having a liking for politics, Mr. McCallin early in the 80s became the Republican candidate for coroner. He was elected. Later he was chosen county treasurer and then elected sheriff. For the latter office he had as an opponent Col. Joseph Gray. Sheriff McCallin made Col. Gray his chief deputy and later when the colonel was elected sheriff, the compliment was returned.

Was Mayor of Pittsburgh.

In 1887 Mr. McCallin was the Republican candidate for mayor against Bernard McKenna and was elected. His opponent was appointed a police magistrate. In 1893, when Mr. McKenna became mayor of Pittsburgh, Mr. McCallin was appointed the Republican member of the board of police magistrates. During his term as mayor Mr. McCallin and the Republican leaders differed and until the time of his death he was not in accord with the Republican organization. He was active in both the Municipal league and the Citizens movements.

When A. M. Brown was appointed recorder of Pittsburgh, in 1901, he made Mr. McCallin the chief assessor of the city. This office he held until J. O. Brown succeeded to the recordership. Soon after John B. Larkin was elected controller he made Mr. McCallin a clerk in his office.

In 1870 Mr. McCallin married Miss Marian Marshall, daughter of John Marshall, head of the well-known foundry company. Mrs. McCallin died in 1863. Mr. McCallin is survived by his only child, Miss Sophia, and his three sisters, Mrs. Thomas B. Riter, Mrs. M. J. McCallin and Mrs. James McKee.

Tribute from Larkin.

Controller Larkin last night had this to say of his dead friend:

He was the soul of honor in all the relations of life; loved gentlemanly sports, despised mean things, was broad-minded and his life was an open book, revealing nothing that did not indicate nobleness of character, and the ever-distinguishing trait to help wherever help was wanting. He was a great power in this city in his younger days and no man could have been more judicious or thoughtful in its exercise. His pleasant and useful life was broken in upon some years ago by acute asthma.

William McCallin was one of the most popular men that ever held office in this city or county, and one of the most correct. His success was most phenomenal, passing rapidly from a lucrative business to the position of coroner of the county: next, to that of treasurer, then to sheriff, mayor of the city, police magistrate, and then served a brief time as chief assessor, and all without a blemish on his character or a dissenting opinion as to his integrity or ability.

He owed his popularity very largely to his courtesy, habits of life, modesty and kindness of heart. No man ever appealed to him in vain, so long as he had anything to give. He was what men call rich 20 years ago, but could not say "no," and lost a fortune through loans and indorsements. Even then he was the same genial, cheerful, big-hearted William McCallin, who left his troubles behind him and did all he could to lift, build up and encourage his fellow man.

His private and public character were unassailable, and no man in this county had a larger or more loyal personal following than he. He was a charming fellow socially; his laugh could always be heard above the din in every social crowd.

PLEHVE'S ASSASSIN ESCAPES PRISON

Five Men Bearing a Forged Note Secure Release Without Trouble.

OFFICIALS ARE DECEIVED

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says that by a daringly conceived coup on the part of his friends, Sassoneff, the murderer of M. Von Plehve, succeeded in escaping from prison.

Early Saturday morning two men, apparently officers of high rank, accompanied by an army surgeon and two gendarmes presented themselves at the prison with a note alleged to be from Minister of Justice Muravieff. The forged note sanctioned the removal of Sassoneff, who assassinated Minister of the Interior Von Plehve with an infernal machine a few weeks ago. The prison officials were completely taken in and handed over the assassin who was driven away in the most deliberate manner.

Nothing has been heard since either of Sassoneff or the bogus officials. The letter presented at the prison was a clever forgery written upon official paper of the ministry of justice.

Monday, September 5, 1904.

This Being Labor Day the Store Is Closed.

NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS. We prepay express, postal and freight charges to any point in the United States east of the Mississippi river on all purchases amounting to $5.00 or more. This holds good whether the purchase is through our Mail Order Department or made in person. It is advantageous to town customers who desire to send merchandise to friends at a distance.

TO EXPOSITION VISITORS. As excursions to the Exposition will be numerous this season we cordially invite all visitors to make our store a point of centralization—in other words a place where you can meet friends, telephone any distance, take your meals, transact any personal business, conduct correspondence, or to just have a social chat with acquaintances.

Fashion's Autumn Campaign Now Open

Tomorrow we invite the people of the Greater City to see what Fashion has been doing through the Summer months in the way of designing fashionable garb for her subjects. The store is rich in all that is new in weave, in all that is new in ready-to-wear things—those things that our buyers have gathered in Europe, those things that have been gathered throughout this country.

We don't need to introduce ourselves to you—many have known us for more than half a century. Again, we do not need to tell you that we sell the best goods made for the lowest prices. That is household lore.

In opening Fashion's Autumn Campaign tomorrow many evidences will be introduced tending to show that not only is our reputation for always selling best goods for underprices maintained, but that we are, this season, overreaching any former efforts in that direction.

Be with us if you only intend making a tour of inspection—be with us if you intend laying out some money, and see what we can do for you in the matter of economy.

Little Children's Coats in Various Autumn Weight Cloths, Specially Priced.

There are three-quarter and walking length coats for children of 2 and 3 years of age—navy, brown, cardinal and tan. Some tailor finished, others trimmed rather elaborately.

Those worth $7.50 we will sell for $4.50, those worth $8.75 we will sell for $5.50.

The difference in price covers a difference in the quality of cloth used. The same finish and colors in both ranges of price.

Women's Negligees, Geishas and Long Kimonos, Very Low in Prices.

Monday, September 5, 1904.

Plans completed for the tenth season of the Pittsburgh orchestra give promise for the most successful of its artistic triumphs. The season will open in November, with Director Emil Paur in charge, and that gentleman has arranged a most attractive program at great labor and pains. There is no doubt about the artistic excellence of the season. The thing that is not so certain is the financial success, but there is good reason to believe that Pittsburgh music lovers will show their appreciation as never before. They will not be content to rest under the imputation that more has been said for Pittsburgh culture than can be justified.

Grief will be brought to the hearts of many by the death of former Mayor William McCallin, which occurred yesterday. Mr. McCallin was widely known and loved for his gentle courtesy and generosity. Successful in business, he entered politics more than a score of years ago, first being elected coroner, then treasurer, sheriff and mayor. Though his personal popularity grew during his political career, his financial affairs suffered and he died comparatively a poor man. Mayor McCallin was better known to the preceding generation of Pittsburghers than to the present and his warmest friends are among those who have been active in Pittsburgh life for more than a decade.

A telegram from St. Petersburg conveys the information that Gen. Kuropatkin has complained to the czar of the poor quality of ammunition furnished for his artillery. It is stated that this poor quality is due to the fact that large annual appropriations for "renewal of ammunition" have been pocketed by an official, a member of the royal family, while the same old ammunition has been served to the army. This sort of corruption is treasonable and so despicable that it is difficult to conceive a grade of rascality capable of it. The Manchurian campaign has shown, at least, that there is no such meanness among the Japanese, for their fire has always been effective.

For the first time since the civil war there are colored troops encamped in Virginia. A detachment of these is participating in the regular army maneuvers at Manassas. They will probably not be welcomed by the Virginians, but they will remain on the footing of tried and loyal defenders of their country. Uncle Sam's colored troops have distinguished themselves for bravery and good discipline on every field where they have fought. During the wars with the Sioux and Apaches they were the Indians' terror, both by reason of their gallantry and because the "buffalo man" could not be scalped. In the Philippines their record has been no less creditable.

H. B. Marriott Watson, author of "Hurricane Island" and other thrilling romances abounding in wholly improbable situations, has been writing a weighty article for a London review on American women. Mr. Watson is so shocked by the independence of the American girl that he declares her to be a menace to the future of the world. He gravely quotes a cynical representative of the sex to the effect that they are usually cold-hearted and argues from this a sad fate for a country without love. Mr. Watson makes himself ridiculous writing upon a subject of which he knows nothing. The American girl is independent, bless her warm heart, but she is none of the other things the novelist imagines. She is a menace to nothing but the brutal fogyism of the old world and it will be better for having that destroyed.

Two charters were issued on Saturday for electric railroads in West Virginia. One is to run from New Martinsville on the Ohio river to Salem in Harrison county; the other is to run from Fairmont, the county seat of Marion, to Morgantown, the county seat of Monongalia. These projects are indices to the marvelous development that has been taking place in our neighboring state during the past few years. New Martinsville is not as young as its name might imply. It has been a "port of entry" for Ohio river steamboats for half a century. But aside from the importance of being the county seat for the roughest spot on earth, as West Virginians were wont to say, it had not passed the dignity of 500 population a decade and a half ago. The coal and oil developments in Wetzel have made it a railroad center and a town of importance. Salem is an oil town. It has become known to the world within a decade. Fairmont and Morgantown have grown beyond recognition in the same period by reason of the same development. As these towns have grown West Virginia has been transformed from a Democratic to a Republican state. Yet our Democratic friends would have us believe that this thriving people will go back to their old allegiance this year simply because an old man has been honored by a nomination on the Democratic ticket.

Kuropatkin's Retreat.

Gen. Kuropatkin appears to have extricated himself from a difficult position by precipitate retreat. He has advised the war office at St. Petersburg that all of his forces have crossed the Taitse river and he was heard from 18 miles south of Mukden, though the body of his troops is believed to be in the vicinity of Yentai, 12 miles farther south. One of his latest telegrams requests the immediate dispatch of the Sixth army corps to the front.

Field Marshal Oyama reported at 9 o'clock yesterday morning that Liao-Yang had been occupied by his forces, but said he had no information about the situation north of the river, where Kuroki was hanging on the flank of the retreating Russians. He does not attempt to estimate the casualties of his forces, but says they must have been very heavy. It is probable he may communicate figures tomorrow.

Gen. Kuropatkin sent to St. Petersburg an estimate of 3,200 casualties for the fighting on Friday, but it does not seem probable he could have had reports from some of his commanders who were covering the retreat. He reports that on Saturday one of Gen. Orloff's regiments was attacked by Kuroki's men and lost 1,500, or one-half of the entire command. Gen. Stakelberg, reported to have been surrounded by reason of misconstruing orders, extricated his command by some means, crossed the river and, at least, partly redeemed himself by rescuing Orloff's command at a critical juncture.

The Japanese are probably too much exhausted by 12 days of constant fighting and marching to press the Russian retreat at the moment. They have won probably the bloodiest battle in history and may be content to rest and recuperate. Their losses, however, are not more than half what they had prepared for, so they are not likely to rest long before renewing the attack, unless the rains prevent a forward movement. They will not stop south of the ancient capital of Mukden, though they may assume the defensive before going far beyond that point. Russia is apparently preparing for a winter campaign, to bring her tremendous resources to bear, but it will find the offensive a more difficult game than its ill-fated defensive campaign has been. With the Japanese fighting from cover and chosen positions the Russians will need hundreds more guns and thousands more men than they have had on the way up from Vafangow to Liao-Yang.

The story of the battle of Liao-Yang has yet to be told. The news dispatches have given mere unsatisfactory glimpses of what has obviously been a heroic and bloody field. The Russian fighting quality was shown to have not deteriorated since the Turkish war, while the Japanese quality has been proven far better than anyone anticipated. A Russian officer, retreating from Liao-Yang, has described the Japanese as "disciplined demons," and there is reason to believe they earned the title.

Until there is definite news from the right bank of the Tai the full results of the battle cannot be known. The Japanese victory may finally prove much greater than now appears, or the Russians may possibly be found to have redeemed a desperate situation. If the latter proves the case there is more fierce fighting in store for the near future.

Hall's Iridescent Dream.

James Knox Polk Hall, chairman of the Pennsylvania Democratic committee, has thought out an idea. There may be suspicion in some quarters that Col. James M. Guffey handed this idea to Mr. Hall, but for the present it appears as an original cerebral incubation of the gentleman from Elk and must be treated as such. It is nothing less than an idea that the Democrats may gain two or three members in the congressional delegation from this state. It is based upon the assumption that "what has been done can be done again," rather than upon the motto of the ill-fated Sam Patch that "some things can be done as well as others."

A recollection of Sam Patch rises naturally in contemplation of a desperate undertaking, advertised in advance. Mr. Hall, having acquired his idea, lost no time in acquainting the public with the fact. He is gloating over the possibility. Certain districts have been carried by the Democrats; why not again? The thought gives pleasure to the Democratic chairman, so he laughs softly in public. This is a good thing. It will be remembered the Hibernian gentleman who started out to have fun with the bull laughed his fill before the fun began. After the event, when he picked himself up in the next field, where Taurus had thrown him, he congratulated himself that he had laughed in anticipation, because otherwise he would not have had any laugh. On the same principle Mr. Hall is wise in having his enjoyment in the prospect.

If we may be allowed a suggestion, however, the sage at St. Marys is not making the most of the situation. He is confining himself to two or three districts in the state when, if he would cast his eye about, he could find many more that were Democratic territory in the more or less distant past. In fact, the older Democrats may remember the time they had an actual majority of the Pennsylvania delegation in the house of representatives at Washington. Since that time Pennsylvania has been deprived of no territory. It has gained no territory, either, but it has gained a few congressional districts, while the Democracy has been losing them. Mr. Hall might just as well gloat over the capture of all of these. Dreams are not expensive. A big dream costs no more than a little one.

There is a report, however, that Mr. Hall is arranging for big mass meetings and other things in the hope of realizing his dream. That is different. Mass meetings cost money and other things cost more. On this basis the Democratic chairman's pleasant dream is too big already. He probably has the money to spend—it may have accompanied the idea—but when the districts have gone Republican again, for the same reasons that they first ceased to be Democratic, there will be nothing to show for the expense except the laugh Mr. Hall is having now. This is not the year that Pennsylvania intends to drop its Republicanism in any district or county.

That Race Issue.

Our contemporary, the Post, now indorses lynching. It says: "What would be the condition of affairs in Pennsylvania, say we had a large excess of lawless and unmanageable black population?" We cannot conceive the conditions. We might have a large black population, but never an unmanageable one. Lynching is not a normal attribute of the Pennsylvania citizen. Many opportunities for that class of lawlessness have been neglected in this state. Obedience to the law on the part of the ordinary citizens of this commonwealth breeds respect for the law among those who come from other sections. There is crime, we are sorry to admit, but it is punished by the orderly proceedings of the courts. Though the Post says, "The intent exists when the provocation is created," we do not believe there is, or will ever be, any intent in this state to burn men at the stake. That intent disappeared from it when barbarism departed, nearly a hundred years ago.

As for President Roosevelt's alleged revival of the race issue, there has been no such thing. The revival has been by the southern fire-eaters and their northern sympathizers. President Roosevelt's offending consisted in entertaining Booker T. Washington. Mr. Washington's life work is to teach the negro the principles of good citizenship—to lead a moral life and to do some useful work. He has consistently advised the colored man to keep out of politics. His main effort has been to teach his pupils how to do some particular thing well, in order that they may attain a position above that of unskilled labor. That is the sum of his offending. He is raising the negro above the condition of slavery and the slave owner fears the time when he must pay a fair price for labor. President Roosevelt has offended because he has done what he could to encourage the effort to better the physical and moral condition of the race. That has been the real cause of the epithets hurled at him.

It has been repeatedly shown that the charge that Roosevelt has appointed an unusual number of colored men to office in the south is untrue. Cleveland appointed as many. McKinley appointed more. The charge is a mere pretense to conceal the real reason for southern enmity. The Post asserts that he has refused to appoint negroes at the north. It knows this to be untruthful. President Roosevelt has appointed colored men to office in the north. According to population, they are in greater number than at the south. Moreover, the president has not appointed a single colored man in the south to a position where he could "dominate" a white man. His appointments have had no possible influence upon the epidemic of lynchings in the south, including the barbarism of burning men alive, except as they may have aroused the unreasonable and uncivilized hatreds of that section of the country. The Post's reference to "the one unforgivable crime" is wholly beside the case. The recent outrageous violation at the Statesboro prison, followed by a double burning at the stake, did not involve that crime. The men who were hurried into eternity by the mob had been charged with murder, convicted and sentenced to legal death. The sheriff pleaded with the mob not to kill the men because that would prevent the possibility of learning from them the names of their accomplices and defeat the ends of justice. But if the south and the Post insist on having a "race issue" in this campaign, there is no reason why anyone should quail to meet it. Lynching is not popular in the north and will not be indorsed at the polls.

An Associated Press report from St. Petersburg says: "Telegraph operators and correspondents also have suffered severely. Two correspondents of the Associated Press have been shot, one has been decorated for bravery, and two telegraph operators have been killed." Those decorations must be very serious affairs.

It is hoped that Senator Fairbanks does not try to answer William Allen White's question while he is in Kansas. He may be needed some place else during the campaign.

At last the czar is reported to be worried. It is enough to worry anyone to have a new baby arrive just when losing as large a bit of property as Manchuria.

Bishop Potter is to visit Pittsburgh in November. It is not announced that he is to open any saloons at that time. But his visit will be popular.

The Hon. Richard Bartholdt of St. Louis wants to stop all war. Evidently the affair in the far east is distracting attention from the world's fair.

The Democratic handbook has been passed up to Judge Parker for criticism. It will likely be a blank when he gets through with it.

Ohio Populists could only muster four men to hold a state convention. That reads as if prosperity was getting in its fine work.

A British admiral is to call upon the sultan of Turkey, and the first question of the sultan will doubtless be, "How much?"

Kuropatkin's strategy, as announced early, continues to be effective. The Japanese are still following him into the interior.

Street car conductors are to receive orders by telephone direct to the car. The first order should be to act civilly.

Kuropatkin reports that Stakelberg blundered. What has Kuropatkin been doing all this time?

The barefoot boy will put on his shoes and stockings and trudge regretfully to school today.

Another Adirondack guide has been shot. The open season on guides continues the whole year.

Has anyone heard from Tom Taggart lately? He seems to have joined the silent minority.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The city beautiful is a paying proposition, and New Yorkers, realizing the fact, are daily showing added appreciation. New York has long been the great show place of America; it is fast becoming the greatest in the world. Once on a time its skyscrapers were deplored as lacking beauty. Nowadays they are beginning to show a beauty all their own—when seen from a proper angle. New York, from the river, would, lacking the skyscrapers, be much less imposing. Even at close range many of them are good to look upon. The new Times building is satisfying from either side on Forty-second street; and only a trifle less pleasing from Broadway or Seventh avenue. The Flatiron building has an impressiveness all its own when seen from Madison Square. And so it is with most of the great structures. This proves a disposition on the part of architects to indulge their artistic tastes, after serving useful ends, rather than any manifestation of municipal spirit. The municipal spirit is shown in the planning of parks and recreation grounds and piers and the erection of fountains and statues and "isles of rest." It has been shown by one firm downtown, which, having the side of a house at its disposal, painted trees on it and a green field with a boy in it flying a kite—which is a shade better than an unsightly "ad." Everywhere one sees evidences of the fact that business men are in thorough harmony with the city fathers in the belief that to make the town beautiful is to help business.

Things Worth Seeing En Route.

Corporations have no souls, according to the old aphorism. No altruistic moving of the heart caused the Metropolitan Rapid Transit Company to run a new line of cars from Houston street to the One Hundred and Thirtieth street ferry; it was simply a realization of the fact that there were things worth seeing en route. During the few days the cars have been running they have done a big business. The cars travel along the boulevard from the ferry to Fifty-ninth street, passing Grant's tomb and many other objects of interest. Though fairly good speed is made in the trip down town, the "man in a hurry" will stick to the elevated railroad. The new line is principally for sightseers. "The city beautiful is a paying proposition."

Object Lesson to Pittsburghers.

Across the river from One Hundred and Thirtieth street the palisades are an object lesson to Pittsburghers. Pittsburgh might easily be one of the most beautiful cities in the world; nobody pretends that it is now anything of the kind. There are topographical advantages on the south side of the Monongahela and Ohio rivers which have been utterly neglected. The railroads have done much to spoil any chances of beautifying the "hogbacks" which flank the rivers from Knoxville to the West End, but there are still possibilities. What might be done Pittsburghers may see in the little park situated a few minutes' walk from the head of the Castle Shannon incline. Of the opportunities missed a trip to the palisades will convince any Smoky City resident. Of course, a street car figures in the trip to be made, but the line does not run through any roads of unsightly newness or ancient ugliness. Instead, it zigzags its way up the hill through pleasant lanes, flanked with hedges and well-kept lawns and beds of flowers of every hue; and every twist and turn shows one not only a magnificent view of the river below and the beautiful town afar off, but beauty, unexpected beauty, near at hand.

Stroll Along Grandview Avenue.

Persons forced to stop over in Pittsburgh for a few hours sometimes take a trip up one of the inclines, stroll along Grandview avenue and find the street well named. Were it more "get-at-able," and were there frequent pleasing resting places, like the little park on the Castle Shannon hill, only more so, they'd "come again and stay awhile." "The city beautiful is a paying proposition."

Situation Has Its Penalties.

To attract the stranger and to entertain him is to put money in the pocket of the native, but the situation has its penalties. Gotham's thousands crowd the cars and trains and ferryboats morning and evening, and to handle the crowds on business bent is a severe problem for the rapid transit companies. But when to the business crowds there are added the crowds on pleasure bent, the situation becomes serious indeed. There are so many places of entertainment in and near New York that a bare enumeration would more than fill this column. There are more "watering places" alone than one could swing a pointer at in one brief article. There is no New Yorker so poor that he cannot visit one of these places once in awhile. The great bulk of the population "takes in" at least one of the beaches every week. And the crowd is growing greater every summer. The rapid transit problem, therefore, is a progressive one. Always the engineers must be planning new roads, more cars and greater facilities at important terminals. The greatest of these last is, of course, the Brooklyn bridge. That the terrible crush and jam to be observed there daily is not provocative of more casualties seems miraculous, when one notes that the front line of a nervous, excited crowd has its toes over the edge of the platform when a train pulls in; when one sees the hurried and worried multitude fight its way onto train and street car. Park Row is a seething mob in what is known as the "rush hours," and every street car makes its way like a knife through butter. It is like Pittsburgh's Fifth avenue on election night.

Strike Likely to Be Averted.

And while on the subject of rapid transit, it is pertinent to note that all over the Greater New York there is being heaved one big sigh of relief. There is strong chance that the threatened strike on the "L" roads will be averted, and that the trains will be running as usual on Tuesday. This fact, and the further fact that the beef strike has been ended, will give added significance to the parade of labor's hosts on the city streets tomorrow.

The Quiet Observer

By ERASMUS WILSON.

Who are the nobles of the earth,
  The true aristocrats,
Who need not bow their heads to lords,
  Nor doff to kings their hats?
—Stewart.

You know them.

And a more useful class of people does not exist on the face of the earth.

It is to these same docile, patient, industrious people that this nation, and every other nation, for that matter, owes not only its present prosperity, but its very existence.

The fathers of our government were not great men, as greatness is reckoned in these times, but men of true worth. They had hearts to feel, and with them to feel a strong desire to do that which was right was their command to act.

Thus were our revolutionary sires moved by the spirit of freedom to break the bands that bound them to an unsympathetic ruler. This spirit sustained them through long years of terrible war. It has moved their descendants to act more than once, and has never failed to sustain them until they had won honorable victories which have ever been great aids to the progress of civilization, and to the betterment of the condition of mankind generally.

* * * * *

There was a simplicity about the lives of these people, or rather in their lives, that commands the attention of the student of history who is seeking knowledge concerning the elements of their success.

In all probability they wrought far more and much better than they knew or even dreamed of, for if any of them dreamed of the greatness this country has attained they must have been afraid or ashamed to mention it.

Indeed, it is probably true that if they indulged but sparingly in Utopian dreams, being too deeply engaged with the work they had in hand and too hard pressed by their present necessities to speculate upon future possibilities.

Had they been able to foresee the present times they must necessarily have foreseen the trials, the troubles and the sacrifices that intervened. This would have discouraged them.

Can you imagine that the revolutionary fathers would have begun the war had they foreseen seven years of fighting, together with the sacrifices that these would require?

Was it not enough for them to feel the oppression of the hour and to realize that war was the only sure remedy if successfully applied? And is it not altogether probable that they were more deeply interested in their own state and condition than in that of their descendants?

Their hearts were all right, therefore they could not go far wrong.

* * * * *

It is the earnest, whole-hearted men and women who make for the good of any country or for any community and for the advancement of civilization. Soldiers of fortune have accomplished very little that still lives either in history or in established institutions of real worth. And all because they had no heart in their work.

What man, of all the men you know, or of whom you have read, has ever accomplished anything worth while who was not prompted from the heart; that is, who did not earnestly desire to succeed in the particular work he had undertaken?

The desires which lead to success are born in the heart, or of the heart, and are not of the mind alone. That which we want is not always the thing for which we have a true desire. We want that which satisfies our appetites and pleases our fancies, but desire that which gratifies our souls.

Our desires are, according to our natural dispositions, modified by education, culture and environment. Our wants are according to our necessities. The one is born of our human or animal nature, the other of our higher, or spiritual nature.

Those, for instance, who marry through pure desire live happily and successfully, while those who marry because they want to usually live to regret having done so.

* * * * *

That which is edifying as well as enjoyable is from heart to heart. The singer who sings from the heart out will reach more hearts than the one who sings because it pays, although the latter may be more clever and accomplished.

Emma Abbott was a heartsome singer, who drew crowds to hear her in spite of the fact that musical critics persisted in saying she was not a great singer. Nor was she ever accused of being a great beauty or an accomplished actress. She had an earnest desire to sing. Her heart was full of song and her song full of kindly spirit.

There were not critics enough in all the world to write her down and out.

You may recall an old-time fiddler whose playing was more soulful and satisfying than that of the famous violinists to whom you paid big money for the privilege of hearing them, or rather of witnessing their art, for there was as much in seeing as in hearing.

Speaking of old-time fiddlers calls to mind the recent death of one who was never forgotten by anyone who ever heard him play. He was Alexander Quay, well known in the Beaver valley and hereabouts. He spent his later years in Denver, but his remains were brought back home to lie along with those of his old friends and acquaintances in the Little Beaver church yard.

Following is a tribute from one of his musical associates, which will be appreciated by the friends of both:

* * * * *

THE FRIENDS OF LONG AGO.

On the banks of Little Beaver, when the sun was in the west,
The breeze was softly blowing and the bird was on the nest;
The trees were gently waving their branches to and fro,
We laid him down to slumber, the friend of long ago.

Fond memory, that tender tie, will never cease to bind
The name of one we loved so well to those he left behind;
So unassuming in his life, so musical and true,
Oh, there is none to fill his place. Adieu, my friend, adieu!

His kindred sleep beside him, their names we hold most dear—
Quay, Achison and Porter—we loved them all when here;
The Youngs, too, and McGeorges, no longer sow and reap,
Their toil is all forgotten and peacefully they sleep.

Their children may be scattered, for changes will be made,
And others in the coming years will by their side be laid;
And sacred will God's acre be while summers come and go—
And still we shall remember the friends of long ago.

How pleasing is the happy thought that we shall meet again
In yonder bright and happy home, unknown to grief and pain.
May Little Beaver's limpid stream its waters cease to flow,
If we forget our many friends—the friends of long ago.

PERSONALS

"The Hungarian people are a unit in wishing Japan to win in the war with Russia, and the news of the downfall of Russia in the far east will not be more gladly received anywhere in the world than in Hungary, for, if it had not been for Russia, Hungary would today be an independent state and have its own separate government," was the rather remarkable statement of one who is in the United States on an important mission for the Austro-Hungarian government. Frederic Balassa, an expert civil engineer, who is a professor at the Hungarian State Royal Superior Technical college at Budapest and a delegate of his government to the United States, is stopping at the Duquesne hotel and will be in this city for 10 days visiting local iron and steel industries. He is visiting all such manufacturing institutions in the principal cities of the United States, and was also commissioned to inspect the exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition, from which he has just returned. He has but two more stops to make before returning to his native country—in Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia. He gave an interesting talk last night on the industrial and political conditions in his own country. On the war topic he said the part that Russia took in aiding the Austrian emperor to suppress the revolt of Hungarians in 1849 was still fresh in the memory of all Hungarians, and they were devoutly praying for the success of Japanese arms. "Outside of the war the burning question in Hungary is the tariff. The Hungarian people have learned, by the experience of the United States, of the wisdom of protection of home industries and wish to adopt it. Hungary is an agricultural country. Austria is dependent upon Hungary for its agricultural products and admits them free into Austria in order to send their industrial products free into Hungary, but the Austrian industries are so strong that the few in Hungary are not able to compete with them. Hungary, therefore, wants to place a duty on Austrian products and is willing to pay a duty on all its own products exported to Austria. The emperor, however, refuses to permit a tariff between the two states for fear Hungary will become more powerful and prosperous than Austria."

United States Marshal E. S. Wilson of Porto Rico, and his daughter, Miss Gertrude Wilson, of Columbus, O., are at the Henry. Mr. Wilson came to Pittsburgh Saturday to attend the banquet in honor of Charles F. McKenna, recently appointed to a federal judgeship in Porto Rico. Mr. Wilson is in the United States on a vacation and returns to his post the latter part of the month. He has been visiting his old home in Ironton, O. Thirty years ago, when Controller John B. Larkin was a resident and city clerk of Ironton, he and Wilson were fast friends, although they opposed each other politically. Mr. Wilson took occasion on his present visit to Pittsburgh to renew this friendship, and he and the controller spent a couple of enjoyable hours at the hotel last night. Mr. Wilson was formerly proprietor and editor of the Ironton Register. He is a veteran of the civil war and has always taken a prominent part in Ohio politics. He was appointed marshal of Porto Rico by President McKinley and reappointed by President Roosevelt.

Bryan's Support of Judge Parker.

Bryan said in his Springfield speech: "Judge Parker believes in the gold standard. I believe in bimetallism, but I can vote for him in order that through him the country may rid itself of an imperial policy." Just pull down the flag, and the money standard becomes secondary. THE DEJECTED KING.

The king was looking very sad,
  As if, indeed, his land
Was swiftly going to the bad
  Beneath his guiding hand.

His fool looked up with pitying eyes
  And saw the monarch's frown;
"Alas!" he mused, "uneasy lies
  The head that wears a crown."

"It ain't the crown that makes me fret,"
  The king said with a groan;
"Some darned disloyal subject sat
  A tack upon the throne."

CRUSADE OF BLUE LAWS FALLS FLAT

Druggists Resume Business, Believing the Knox Tragedy Has Stopped the Prosecutions.

FUND FOR WIDOW OF VICTIM

The soda water fountains and cigar stands were in full blast yesterday for the first time since the beginning of the crusade of the Sabbath Observance association. The druggists of Pittsburgh and Allegheny conducted their business as if the Sabbath Observance association and its crusade were things of the past. While some druggists had previously disregarded the orders of the blue law reformers, every one yesterday carried on business as if he had not the slightest fear of further prosecution.

The belief that public sentiment is in their favor and the death of Harry D. Knox, who was killed in Allegheny by a detective employed by the blue law reformers, were responsible for the open defiance shown by the druggists and small tradesmen.

"I believe that they will let us alone for a while, since Knox was killed in Allegheny," said a Smithfield street druggist whose fountain and cigar stand had been idle for several Sundays. "Every druggist in Pittsburgh is doing business today as usual, and we think the crusade is over and no attempt will be made to revive it for some time. I think the Allegheny tragedy has spoiled the zeal of the blue law advocates for some time to come."

Besides the drug stores and cigar stands a number of confectioneries were open. Business was not as brisk as usual, because it was not generally known the stores would be open.

"The druggists of Allegheny county will not allow the present agitation over the observance of the Sabbath to die with the efforts of the Sabbath Observance association," said President William Dice of the druggists' association, yesterday. "The Sabbath people have started the movement and we expect to carry it on until the legislature repeals certain parts of the act of 1794. There will be a meeting of the druggists on Wednesday afternoon and we shall confer with the committee on legislation. This latter body is at present working on a bill that will be introduced in the next session of the legislature. It is the purpose of the druggists to effect the repeal of the act of 1794 so that there will be no further danger of prosecution for Sunday selling.

"As long as the blue law is in existence the druggists will be liable to prosecution, and it is to prevent any further repetition of the proceedings of the Sabbath association that we shall have presented to the legislature a measure providing for the repeal of this act."

Speaking of the riot in Allegheny last Tuesday night, Mr. Dice said:

"At our meeting on Wednesday it is likely the druggists of Allegheny county will raise a fund for Mrs. Knox, widow of Harry D. Knox. From all I can learn Mrs. Knox is in a condition of poverty that demands assistance from some source. Up to the present time there have been no offers of assistance given to the widow, and I think it is likely the druggists will do something for her."

A subscription for the benefit of Mrs. Harry D. Knox was started yesterday evening among the Sharpsburg druggists. The list was headed by a subscription of $50, and liberal subscriptions are expected today from other druggists of the borough. The money, as soon as it has been collected, will be sent direct to Mrs. Knox.

WILL EXTEND MEAT STRIKE DESPITE NEW YORK ACTION

President Donnelly Says New York Butchers' Return Will Cut No Figure.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The return to work of the 3,500 strikers in New York city will have no material effect upon the general situation in the stock yards strike, according to President Donnelly of the Butchers' union. In an address this afternoon before an audience composed of 5,000 strikers and their friends, Mr. Donnelly declared that despite the desertion of the New York members of the union, he would make no change in his plans to tie up the meat industry of the country this week.

"Before next Saturday night I expect there will be fully 50,000 more workmen involved in the struggle," said President Donnelly today, "and the product of the New York plants will not break the tie-up planned for this week. Let no one be discouraged if the fight seems to drag along. We will be all the stronger and will secure a better settlement if we stay out for seven or eight weeks longer."

The Sunday quiet at the stock yards was marred by but one insignificant disturbance.

Sabbath School Meeting.

The thirty-first district of the Sabbath School association, which includes Pittsburgh, will hold two sessions next Tuesday at the Turtle Creek United Presbyterian church. The afternoon meeting will be in charge of Miss Alice Hamrin, field secretary. The evening meeting will be in charge of the Rev. O. H. Phillips, pastor of the First Christian church of Braddock.

Pass Pennies for Dimes.

Conductors of Highland park and Sharpsburg cars are being victimized at night into taking whitened pennies for dimes. The trick has been worked very extensively of late and an attempt will be made to ascertain the guilty parties. Many conductors have given a nickel change and rang up a fare on receiving an ordinary cent coated with silver paint.

Hay Fever Unknown.

Certain it is, and many years of careful experience are back of the statement, that hay fever, and kindred annoying and troublesome summer affections, distressing to so many thousands all over the country, recurring regularly as July and August, are absolutely unknown in the "Highlands of Ontario." Thousands of people go to Muskoka, Georgian Bay or the Lake of the Bays every year for nothing else but to avoid hay fever, and find perfect immunity from the ailment, and many by going there regularly for a period of a few years are said to be permanently cured.

Hay fever booklet can be had free for the asking by applying to W. Robinson, traveling passenger agent, Grand Trunk railway, 506 Park building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

JUDGE PARKER'S DOG UNPOPULAR

Canine Had Encounter With a Skunk So Visitors Steer Clear of Esopus.

CANDIDATE DODGES THE BEAST

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Rosemount was unpopular with visitors today. Many approached the grounds, but they had not the temerity to enter. Teddy, Judge Parker's dog, was on guard. He is not a particularly ferocious beast, but, unfortunately for those who came within close range, he had an encounter with a black and white animal, which he thought was a cat when he started to chase across the lawn. But at bay, he proved to be a skunk. Baths and disinfectants, cologne and plenty of outdoor air failed to put the dog in condition for contact with human beings.

When Judge Parker and his family started for church they had to make a run for the launch at a time when Teddy was not looking. Persons who sought to enter the grounds today changed their minds even before they saw the "private property" signs. Many did not know why they left, but found it unpleasant to remain. Teddy met the polecat late last night, and after killing it tried to get into the house. Judge Parker answered the dog's scratch at the screen, but was firm in his refusal to let the animal in. Occupants of the lodge were equally inhospitable. Teddy then spent an hour running back and forth between the two houses, and finally found a bed in the hammock. The windows of Rosemount had to be closed.

Early this morning the dog was taken to the river, but the odor had become set and Mrs. Parker contributed a bottle of cologne to the cause. Even this was not effective, and Teddy remains an exile.

DR. LEAK DEFENDS STARKEY AND BLUE LAW CRUSADE

Gives History of the Movement and Holds Newspaper Comment Responsible for Allegheny Tragedy.

"If ever anyone was justified in firing a pistol in self-defense, it was N. C. Starkey. The injustice of this affair may be seen in that while the officers of Allegheny have been scouring the community for witnesses against the detective, no effort has been made to arrest any of the howling mob that attacked him," declared the Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Leak, during his sermon on "The Sabbath Law," in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal church last evening. Continuing the pastor said in part:

I will call attention to the need of man for periods of rest from labor and that for ages one day in seven has been recognized for this purpose, and that in order to obtain this rest, especially for the poor man, law is necessary and law can be no respecter of persons.

In view of the fact that my name has frequently appeared of late in the public press in connection with the enforcement of the Sunday law, sometimes with ridicule and sometimes in censure, it is due to you as the congregation I serve that I explain my relation to this work.

Early last spring the union ministers' meeting of Allegheny county was requested by the churches of Homestead to do what they could for the suppression of Sabbath desecration in their region, especially in the parks. Out of this came a call for a convention to consider the organization of a county Sabbath observance association. At this convention there were present between 200 and 300 ministers and laymen. The association was organized with the usual officers and an executive committee of 15, who were instructed to enforce the law.

An effort was made to see the mayor of our city to request him to enforce the law, but he was not to be seen by us. The committee engaged a manager, who was to secure such help as he might need. The first complaints were against Kenneywood park, then the open stores. Some thought that we should not disturb the druggists, and we did not, except in one community, where we were requested to do so by the citizens of the locality. Our detectives were tried men who had been in the employ of the Anti-Saloon league, and we do not believe that they were guilty of any of the mean persecuting with which they have been charged. We have never pressed the payment of fines when the parties have promised to keep the law. We have tried to treat everybody in a spirit of fairness, only seeking obedience to the law.

Some of our city papers have ridiculed the movement, and denounced it and the few men who were appointed to do the work in such terms as could not fail to appeal to the lawless elements of our population. I can but believe that such articles had much to do in awakening the lawless spirit that led to the deplorable tragedy of last Tuesday night. The detectives had been called to that squire's office by law, they were prosecuting no one, but were being prosecuted themselves, and the mob was allowed to collect and they were sent out to a murderous assault.

This much I say to you, not in apology, but in explanation of my public relations to this matter. My position was not one of my own seeking. I am not much of a fighter, neither am I a shirk, and when a duty is placed upon me I try to discharge it. I have been made unduly prominent because of the absence of so many of my colleagues during the summer. The issue is upon us, and opportunity will be given before long for the Christian people of our county to say whether they want the Sunday law enforced or not. There is even a deeper question than that. Are we to be ruled by the mob instead of by the law?

GROUNDHOG CLUB SENDS OUT ANNUAL SUMMONS

From Funxsutawney Comes the Call for the Hunters and Others to Assemble for the Fray.

The time is drawing near for the annual autumn hunt of the Punxsutawney Groundhog club. The convocation of the hunters is quite as important in regulating the following year's weather as the wheat crop affects the grain market. The call for the hunt, which has just reached Pittsburgh, is as follows:

Need I remind you that the time draweth near when the gastronomical mechanism of the disciples of Brer' Groundhog becomes distended and surcharged with a hot desire to endosmose the succulent woodchuck. Our faithful scouts return daily from perambulations 'mongst the surrounding kopjes with scarlet tales of adventure with the herbiferous beast, whose peregrinations and whose multitudinosity this season have occasioned much debate. The piebald farmer looketh askance at his clover field and, ever and anon, cometh upon a patch of hillside which has been reduced to stubble by the festive woodchuck, and he sighs for the time to come when our hungry herdes shall treck up to the uncobwebbed hole and get busy with the punching-stick, the spade and the grub hoe.

Therefore, I am commanded by the High Potentate to interrogate the Pittsburgh contingent of our famous aggregation concerning a suitable date to begin the work of devastation. We are expecting the entire Coon Hollow bunch or their proxies, including Col. Frank Ridgway and others of the branch weather works in Pittsburgh. All must come in full dress.

The call is signed by the supreme secretary in the office of the weather works in Punxsutawney. The hunt will come off next week.

Sacred Services in Parks.

Park services were held last evening in the West park, Allegheny, and in Schenley park. At the former there was an audience of about 2,000 and at the latter 3,000. At both the Rev. S. Edward Young spoke. Alexia Bassian, the Syrian soprano, sang with the choruses and also rendered several solos at the services. In Allegheny the Homestead Library band played, and at Schenley the Braddock Library band.

Negro Held for Cutting.

Magistrate Vitchestain at the Central station hearing yesterday morning held Edward Rucker for a hearing later on a charge of felonious cutting. Rucker and William Wright, both negroes, had a fight in a saloon at Ledlie and Arch streets and Wright was cut about the head and arms so severely that he is now at the Passavant hospital.

Conversation Cost a Fine.

At Central police station yesterday Andrew McGinley was fined $25 and costs for talking to a cook in a Liberty avenue cafe and creating a disturbance with the proprietor when he told McGinley he was taking the cook's time.

Threatened to Stab Clerk.

John Taft was fined $10 at the Central station hearing yesterday for drawing a knife and threatening a clerk in a downtown hotel who ordered Taft to vacate the house.

PUBLIC TO SEE CHAPEL OF PYX

Historic Room Has Long Been a Sealed Chamber to All but Privileged Few.

WESTMINSTER'S LAST MYSTERY

By LADY HENRY SOMERSET.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Few even of those who are most conversant with the historic interests of Westminster abbey are aware of the existence of the chapel of the pyx, a sealed chamber to all but a privileged few. It was built by Edward the Confessor, in order to escape the damp which arose from the river.

At one time the resting place of the national regalia and the most deeply venerated relics was in a dark and dismal crypt beneath the abbey, but in the reign of Edward I. a great robbery took place, in which some of the monks of Westminster were implicated, and on the return of the king from the wars he summoned the offending ecclesiastics, who were committed to the tower, together with their abbot, Wenloch. The records of the story are incomplete, but it seems that after due inquiries, certain of the malefactors suffered the penalty of death. The regalia and treasures were then transferred to the chapel of the pyx.

Exchequer tallies were kept there, but the most important of all was the pyx, or box, containing the standard coin of the realm. These treasures remained undisturbed until the civil war burst upon the country. The Puritan fanatics, during the long parliament, threw open the doors of the treasure house and one, George Withers, having arrayed himself in the royal robes and the crown, exposed them and the sacred ornaments to contempt. The regalia was destroyed and for a long time the pyx alone was left undisturbed in the ancient chapel. The great doors with seven huge locks were never opened, save in the presence of high officials, when once every few years the ceremony known as "the trial of the pyx" took place.

Now all have vanished, pyx and jewels, and sacred emblems and relics. Nothing remains save the battered little stone altar, but the present dean of Westminster has endeavored to solve the great problem which has troubled many of his predecessors, as to where the monuments to the illustrious dead are now to be placed, there being no longer any available space in the abbey, and the scheme is to restore this chapel of the pyx and ultimately, probably, to throw open the long crypt of which the chapel is only a part. When the huge doors of the pyx are no longer closed, the last mystery of the great abbey will be gone.

GREAT CROWDS PREPARED FOR AT THE EXPOSITION

With All the Holiday Excursionists in the City, the Management Is Making Arrangements for Throng.

The Pittsburgh exposition will be given over to the labor interests today. From the opening until closing the great show will be at the service of the men who toil, their families and friends. Great crowds are looked for. Excursions will fill the city, and the management has made special arrangment to handle the throngs with facility.

Pittsburghers who have not yet heard the great Creatore and his wonderful Italian band will do well to visit the exposition this afternoon or tonight, for he leaves tomorrow and will not be in Pittsburgh again this season. Sousa comes Wednesday for a 10 days' stay with a 50-piece band and 10 soloists.

The management has arranged with the Independent Order of Heptasophs to give them September 30 for their day.

One of the art features of the exposition which is stirring up limitless interest is the Schumann collection of Russian paintings. The canvases are of immense proportions, with a brilliancy of coloring, truth of drawing and value to excite the admiration of the severest critic. The musical program for the afternoon is as follows:

CIRCUS CAME EARLY TO TOWN

Many Youths Played Hookey from Sunday School to See the Big Tents Rise.

IMMENSE PARADE TODAY

The "big show" is here, and not the least of the joys of the holiday will be the succulent peanut, the red lemonade and the sonorous voice of the man who tells of the wonders in the sideshow. This means simply that the circus is in town and that every circus is "the big show." In the case of Forepaugh & Sells Bros. it means literally that it is one of the greatest shows on earth. In the dawn of yesterday the long sections of the special train on the Pennsylvania railroad slipped into town and before the day was very old the site of the East Liberty stock yards was covered with acres of white canvas. Two big caravans of wagons, herds of elephants and camels and a troop of people sufficient to recruit a regiment, populated the place where the cow pens used to be.

The boy who comes to munch peanuts and drink the red lemonade, while he gazes in rapture at the show and listens to the "big concert," will have his ambition realized by the Forepaugh & Sells' show. The city boys were there yesterday and played hookey from Sunday school in order to steal a glimpse of the forbidden sights under the canvas.

"I tell you I'd like to be a reporter." This was the expression that one youngster let slip when he saw a group of reporters being escorted through the grounds, into the menagerie, past the cook house and into the dining tent. It would have been worth 10 years of any boy's life just then to have been a reporter, and it made the reporters feel like boys again, when they enjoyed the privilege.

Nobody grows too old to be amused at the monkeys, to offer trinkets to the elephants or to make bad jokes at the expense of the camels and the hippopotamus. In the dining tent the guests were treated to a meal which tasted all the better for having been cooked and served in the delightful open air of a charming autumn afternoon. It was a cosmopolitan gathering. Bareback riders, equilibrists, ballet girls and clowns made a merry group. Louis Sells, with Mrs. Sells and his little daughter, sat at the head of the guest table. The fare was like that served at a good country road house—homely, but in great variety, appetizing and wholesome.

Through the tent the aroma of the big wood fire assisted the appetite. There are no fancy frills about the cook tent of a circus. Wood is used and the meat, soup, pastry, dessert and coffee are cooked there with the same care and fastidiousness as by the chef of a big hotel or a fashionable club.

All hands at the circus will be obliged to arise early this morning. On account of the Labor day parade the circus procession will move from the grounds at 7 o'clock and is due to arrive at Penn avenue and Seventh street not later than 8:30 o'clock. The parade will come in Penn avenue to Seventh, to Liberty street, to Market street, to Fifth avenue and thence to the grounds at Point Breeze. It will pass up lower Fifth avenue about 8:45 o'clock.

OUSANDS SAW TWO DEDICATIONS

Impressive Ceremonies Attracted Crowds to Mt. Washington and Sharpsburg.

CORNER STONE ALSO IS LAID

The Mt. Washington Methodist Episcopal church in Sycamore street, which replaces the old church destroyed by fire over a year ago, was yesterday dedicated, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Earl Cranston, LL. D., member of the board of bishops of the church. The new church is of brick and stone and cost $50,000, of modern design and equipment and big enough to accommodate the probable growth of the congregation. Music was the feature of the exercises, the large church choir being augmented by a chorus of members of the Sabbath school. At the morning service Bishop Cranston delivered the sermon, speaking on "The Natural Difficulties of a Revelation from God." The Rev. T. N. Boyle, presiding elder of the district, after a brief historical statement of the church, led up to the subject of finance and succeeded in raising $5,890. The money was raised by cash donations, and pledges extending over a period of three years. At the evening service this sum was raised to a total of nearly $10,000.

The afternoon session was devoted principally to greetings by former pastors of the church and those of neighboring churches, among those present being the Rev. O. H. P. Graham and the Rev. J. Ross of Monongahela, both former pastors; the Rev. E. C. Lane of the Mt. Wasington Methodist Protestant church and the Rev. C. D. McClelland of the Mt. Washington Presbyterian church. E. H. Jennings, superintendent of the Sabbath school, presented to the church in behalf of the class taught by Mrs. J. Richmond, an individual communion service, baptismal bowl and water set. The offering for the afternoon was over $2,000.

Before an audience of more than 1,000 people the new $50,000 parochial school building of the St. Joseph parish, Sharpsburg, was dedicated yesterday afternoon with prayer and blessing, by the Rev. Martin Ryan of St. Brigid's church, who had been especially delegated by Coadjutor Bishop Canevin. The Rev. Father Thomas W. Rosensteel, rector of St. Joseph's church, acted as master of ceremonies and the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Father William Cunningham of Turtle Creek, who spoke at length upon Christian education and its benefits. "America," "Star Spangled Banner" and "Te Deum" were sung by a choir of school children conducted by Sister Regis of St. Joseph's convent. Seated on the stage of the auditorium where the services were held were members of the Sharpsburg borough council, officers of the borough and about 40 priests of the Pittsburgh diocese.

A handsome souvenir history of the parish was given to all who attended. The new school will open Tuesday. The building has been secured chiefly through the efforts of the Rev. Father Thomas W. Rosensteel, who has been rector of St. Joseph's church for three years.

Over 2,000 persons witnessed the exercises at the laying of the corner stone of the Roman Catholic Church of the Annunciation, at Charles street and Norwood avenue, Allegheny, yesterday afternoon. The exercises, which began at 3 o'clock, were conducted by the Rev. Francis J. McCabe, pastor of the church. The music was furnished by the united choirs of the Roman Catholic churches of Allegheny, under the directorship of A. E. Fisher. The music was well rendered and the ceremonies throughout were most impressive. A large number of the uniformed rank Knights of St. John paraded the principal streets of the city before the exercises. The new church will cost $80,000 and besides the sacred part will contain five school rooms.

The congregation of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Slavonic church, at Braddock avenue and Frazier street, Braddock, expects to see its hopes of a handsome new church building realized early next spring, and work will start this fall. Bishop Phelan on Saturday secured an order from court permitting him to borrow $50,000 for the benefit of St. Michael's congregation.

LABOR OUGHT TO SERVE AS CHARACTER BUILDER

The Rev. S. Edward Young Talks of Workmen, Capitalists and Machinery as Great Forces.

"The Battle for Bread" was the title of the sermon preached yesterday morning at the Labor day service in the Bijou theater by the Rev. S. Edward Young. He took for his text Acts xx:35, "So laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said: It is more blessed to give than to receive." He said in part:

Ashamed I would be of my church, of my Christianity, if I dared not bring the gospel and the labor problem face to face. Clothe St. Paul with flesh today and he might lift his hands and ask, "Why have ye robbed me of these? Once they were capital indispensable and always sought. Now your machinery and style of commercial life have almost destroyed their value." Who can appreciate the feelings of an old-time typesetter as he sees in the room of the new printing press a single invention throwing out of employment 24 out of each 25 men?

On the South Side, Pittsburgh, remain a few hobnailers trying to eke out an existence by driving one by one the round-headed tacks into the shoe soles. A mere pittance is their pay. Pathetic remnant are they and their brothers in all crafts, sad veterans of the grand army of the republic of labor, too old to learn the new machines, too manly to beg, too wretched to die. Could not the government, which takes charge in some degree of the education of the people, provide some sort of honorable relief for such men whose toil and skill our changing times have rendered almost useless? Is anybody's job secure against possible new discoveries and contrivances?

Men sit here who recall how folks paid the lightning-rod man to keep the lightning out of the house, and some of us just now find it hard enough to pay the bills of the electricity man for bringing the lightning into the house. Paul's supreme idea of work was its effect upon the worker's character. Christ teaches you the same view of toil. You are to ask your task, "Teacher, what am I to be improved in by this work?" Paul's craft rounded him out into an independent, sympathetic, persistent soul. The tents he produced were the least valuable of his labor's products. His manhood was the most.

I protest first of all that we must make the main issue of the work question this test as to the growth of character. Is our present-day scheme depriving the individual of his responsibility? Are such questions as Sabbath observance, honor in business, the effect of the business upon the morals of the community removed from the consciences of the multitudes of workers and left wholly to the consciences of the few whose word is law for the multitudes? If so, we are dwarfing the moral stature of the multitude. Does today's system tend to separate employer and employe from each other's acquaintance and thus breed suspicion? The mistake then should be remedied. By one of the far Canada lakes I have recently had to do with the building of a cottage. The contracting carpenter and his hired men slept in the same simple shelter on beds of balsam boughs, ate from the same dish, lifted the same beams and called each other "George" and "Bill" and "Jack." Of course, a strike would be unlikely there. The second point of concern for the ideal laborer is the chance his toil gives him to help others. Paul used his trade to persudes others to Christ.

SALVATION OF THE HUMAN RACE BOUGHT WITH THE PRECIOUS BLOOD

Pastor Charles T. Russell's Discourse in Bible House Chapel, Allegheny.

CHRIST DIED FOR MEN'S SINS

Pastor Russell was at home yesterday, but expects to speak at New Albany, Ind., next Sunday. He spoke yesterday afternoon as follows:

"Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price." "Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, such as silver and gold * * but with the precious blood of Christ."—I Cor., vi., 19-20; 1 Pet., i., 18-19.

Ye do make void the Word of God through your traditions, was our Lord's charge against the scribes and Pharisees and doctors of divinity in the "harvest" of the Jewish age; and we must bring a similar charge against corresponding classes in the "harvest" of this gospel age. Human theories are rapidly making void and meaningless the precious testimonies of God's Word, recognized by all of His true people for centuries. One of the most serious deflections, one of the most important, because touching one of the most vital doctrines of the scriptures, is the rejection of the testimony of our text. The unreflecting among the Lord's people will be disposed at once to say that this is a false charge—that ministers and Christian people in general of all denominations are still loyal to this fountain principle of the gospel, that they still believe and teach the doctrine of the ransom, briefly expressed in the hymn once so generally sung, but now as particularly avoided:

"Naught of merit or of price
Remains to Justice due;
Jesus died and paid it all—
Yes, all that I did owe."

This doctrine of the ransom or purchase of our race by the precious blood of Christ is not only ignored by modern up-to-date theologians, but is absolutely obnoxious to them, irritating. During the last 50 years all the colleges and seminaries of Christendom have gradually been absorbing human traditions and theories which are violently opposed to this scriptural teaching. If the one is true, the other is false—there is no compromise possible. Maintenance of the scriptural teaching on this subject would mean the death of the false theory; the acceptance of the false theory means the rejection of this scriptural doctrine of "a ransom for all." It will be recognized that I refer to the higher critical teachings and the evolution theory associated therewith. Inquiry will show that nearly all the ministers of nearly all denominations are believers in the doctrine of evolution—that the progenitors of our race, instead of being created perfect and upright in the image of their Creator, were evolved from lower animals, and were much further from the Creator's likeness than mankind in general of today—even the most brutish.

On this point the whole of Christianity depends. We repeat that there is no possibility of compromise. If our first parents were but one remove from the brute creation they were not in God's image and likeness, and consequently the scriptural declarations of their trial for eternal life are absurd, for who could think even for a moment that a being on so low a plane of life could in any sense of the word have been placed on trial before the perfect law of God. And if such a trial would be a mockery, an absurdity, then the scriptural teaching of a fall from the divine likeness and image into sin, degradation and death conditions would be equally untrue and absurd. How could a man who was but one step in advance of a monkey fall into sin and degradation? How could the account of Genesis be true? How could the testimonies of the apostles be true, "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world and death as the result of sin, and so death has passed upon all men because all are sinners"?—Rom., v., 12.

And this line of thought, of man's fall from the divine likeness into sin and under the divine sentence of death, prevails throughout the entire scripture record. God's first dealings with the nation of Israel promised them relief from the conditions of "the curse" and promised that God would send a great Messiah with whom that people might become participants in the work of blessing the world and lifting mankind in general out of the sin-and-death conditions of the curse. How absurd, how false, how deceptive this would be if the views of modern theologians respecting the gradual evolutionary development of our race from Adam until now be true in any particular or degree.

Justice Demanded a Life for a Life.

It was in harmony with God's declaration to the Israelites that they and all the world were sinners that He provided for their reconciliation to Himself through the media of atonement for their sins by sacrifices of bulls and goats, etc. These sacrifices, as the apostle points out, were not claimed to be complete, but merely covered the blemishes of that people for a year following their Day of Atonement. When the year expired the merit or covering of the sacrifice was at an end, and the whole people were again in sin and required to repeat the same sacrifices. The apostle points out that without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins—for that reason the sacrifices must be offered yearly.

St. Paul points out also that those sacrifices "offered year by year continually" never took away sin, but merely covered the sins temporarily. He explains that all this was typical as indicating the method by which God would eventually cancel completely the sins of the whole world—through a better sacrifice than that of bulls and goats. He points out also that our Lord Jesus came into the world for this very purpose—that he might be the real sin-offering, for the sins of the whole world, and that he might thus actually and permanently effect a cancellation of those sins. His message is: "God so loved the world that He sent His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him might not perish, but have everlasting life. God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world (the world was already condemned), but that the world through Him might be saved"—delivered from the sins, weaknesses and blemishes affecting all by heredity and from the death penalty resting upon all because of sin.

Those affected by the higher critical and evolutionary blight will tell us that they believe that "in a certain sense" God sent His Son—that they believe He came to give us more light than we could have had without Him, etc. We answer that we will discuss the "more light" emanating from our dear Redeemer as "the Light of the world" at another time, but now we want to call attention to the fact that a Christian from the scriptural standpoint is not one who believes merely that Jesus was a great teacher and light-bearer to the world, for heathen people believe this much of Jesus, even as we believe that some of the heathen teachers were noble men, superior to the masses; and infidels of the rankest kind believe that Jesus lived, and that He died, and that He was a good man, and that He was a wonderful teacher, and that He left a remarkable impress upon the world. Such a belief is not to be considered a test of Christian faith—faith in Christ.

The test of Christian faith which differentiates it from such beliefs as the foregoing that are common to infidels, heathen, higher critics and evolutionists and the whole world is a very particular one. It relates to Christ's death and to what was the object of His death. The Christian faith once delivered to the saints, in which heathen and infidels and higher critics and evolutionists cannot join, is expressed most pronouncedly in the scriptures. Mark the apostle's statement: "I delivered unto you first of all (as a primary foundation of Christian faith) that which I also received (as a primary teaching), how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; and that He was buried, and that he rose again on the third day"—"for our justification." (1 Cor., xv., 3-4.) The name Christian properly belongs only to those who thus believe—that the death of Christ was not of an ordinary kind, not for His own sins, not a debt of nature, but a penalty or price which He paid for our sins, as expressed also in our text, "Ye are bought with a price, even the precious blood of Christ."

Hear again the word of our Master Himself, and who will dispute that He was well informed respecting His own mission and work? He says, "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto (served) but to minister (to serve others), and to give His life a ransom for many." (Matt. xx:28.) The stress of this entire statement lies upon the word ransom, which in the Greek is lutrom anti, and which means "a price in offset." The harmony of this with our text is evident, and the thought is plain to every mind not warped and prejudiced by the traditions of men, which make void the word of God. It means that Christ in giving His life gave the offset—or purchase price, for Adam's life, which for himself and his race was forfeited through disobedience. Since we were all in Adam's loins at the time of his disobedience and at the time the death sentence was passed upon him, his race were all sharers in his sentence, and consequently all must be sharers in his redemption, and hence it was the divine arrangement that our Lord Jesus should give His life as a price in offset, a price that would correspond to the penalty which was upon the race he would redeem.

"One Mediator Between God and Men."

The Apostle Paul in his letter to Timothy makes this very plain, and distinctly declares, "There is one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave Himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." (Tim. ii:4-5.) Here again we have the same English word ransom with the same meaning, namely, "a corresponding price"—a price in offset. The Greek word is a compound one, with the two parts in reverse order to their statement in the previous quotation. There it was lutrom anti, here it is anti lutrom. The signification is the same and is indisputable. In this last text the apostle is speaking about our Lord Jesus as a Mediator, and here again is the thought that man had so fallen from his original relationship to God that as a sinner he could no longer have access to or communion with God—could no longer hope for divine favor and eternal life because a sinner; and that to meet the emergency, God—still maintaining His justice of character and laws—provided a Mediator—a go-between—who, dealing with God as the sinner's representative, might also deal with the sinner as God's representative, and thus eventually bring about a full and complete reconciliation. And the word reconciliation, elsewhere used in the scriptures, signifies that there had been a conciliation, a harmony between God and His creatures, which had been lost through sin, and the mission of the Mediator was and is to again conciliate, or bring again into harmony, God and man.

There are two parts to this mediation or reconciliation (1) The Mediator first of all as man's representative pays man's penalty at the bar of divine justice, and thus effect a cancellation of the just penalty against man—the death penalty. (2) On the basis of such a payment of man's penalty, divine justice can accept the mediation, and can allow the Mediator to thus act as the divine representative toward man to bring him back to the state or condition similiar to that which he had originally bestowed upon him and from which he fell—where he can again in the image of his Creator possess the blessings and privileges originally bestowed in Eden.

It was to effect the first of these two steps of mediation that our Lord Jesus left the glory which he had with the Father before the world was, and was made flesh and died for our sins—purchasing Adam and his race with His own precious blood from under the sentence of everlasting death, everlasting extinction. Had He not died for our sins the divine penalty, "the soul that sinneth it shall die," would have remained forever upon Adam and all of his posterity—there would have been no resurrection, no future life. It is in view of the fact that "Christ died for our sins" that we may have hope for a future life by a resurrection of the dead.

Time does not permit us to take up the numerous scriptures which corroborate the statement of our text and of the other passages already quoted from the scriptures showing that our race was purchased, bought, and that the price of this liberty from death, the price for this hope for reconciliation with God, centers in the death of Christ as our redemption price.

Lest there should be any misunderstanding on the subject, lest the misrepresentations frequently made should seem forceful, we call your attention to the fact that the word bought in our text is no mistranslation of the original, which is agorazo, and which signifies an open or public purchase, a purchase in the open market. We note also the fact that our English words redeem and redeemed, so frequently used in the scriptures, have the same import and are from the same Greek word agorazo. For instance, this word is rendered redeemed in Revelation v:9, "Thou hast redeemed us to God by thy blood." In Revelation xiv:3, "Which were redeemed from the earth," Revelation xiv:4, "These were redeemed from among men." Exagorazo signifies to purchase out publicly, and occurs in the following scriptures: Galatians iii:18, "Christ has redeemed us from the curse," Galatians iv:5, "To redeem them that were under the law."

True, other less forceful original words are sometimes translated redeemed and redemption, words which signify a setting free without signifying that the freedom is secured by the payment of the price, but this does not at all affect our argument, nor nullify the fact that a score of texts declare that the setting free must be effected by the payment to justice of "a corresponding price." The scriptures declare that the whole race was sold under sin through the disobedience of Adam, and that there is only one way for us to get free from his sentence of condemnation, namely, through the redemption which is in Christ; and that redemption is the ransom, the corresponding price which He paid.

Christians Believe in Blood-Atonement.

Because the evolution theory, the no-ransom theory, is rapidly undermining and destroying true Christian faith—that distinguishes a Christian from the world, that distinguishes the wheat from the tares—therefore we emphasize this point and assure you, not that the great mass of religious teachers are in danger of falling from the faith once delivered to the saints, but that the majority have already fallen—that they no longer believe the primary foundation of the gospel of Christ upon which all the other features of the gospel are built. They are no longer teachers whom God recognizes, but as expressed in Revelation iii:16, they are spewed out of His mouth, are no longer used as His mouthpieces for the promulgation of His message. Their deflection will be more and more manifest as days and months and years roll by. The true people of God, both clergy and laity, are gradually but surely taking their places either for or against the Lord and His message—and faith in the efficacy of the precious blood for the cancellation of sins is one of the tests—the principle one. And the cleavage on this line grows wider daily, separating "wheat" from "tares," in this the "harvest time." Those who take the traditions of the elders and the theories of the higher critics and evolutionists are against the word of God and hence are against God Himself—opponents of God and His gospel—no matter how dignified or learned, and no matter with what formalism they draw nigh to the Lord with their lips, while their hearts are far from Him and the plan of salvation which He has formulated and which He is carrying out.

The sooner all learn the true situation the better. Matters have already reached such a pass that every Christian parent should know that in sending his son or daughter to any of the colleges of today he is sending them to hotbeds of infidelity, and ninety-nine chances to one their faith in the teachings of the Bible will be nullified, destroyed—they will return to propagate their unbelief outwardly and publicly or in secret. Let us not be misunderstood; we have nothing personally against the gentlemen we criticise; many of them are fine men, talented, able and generally speaking, honest. Many of them find it difficult to restrain themselves from more honest expression of their views respecting the scriptures, the atonement of Christ, etc., and practice their deception against their preferences "for the good of the cause," hoping that gradually their evolutionary conceptions will displace the teaching of the scripture and that thus a complete revolution in the church will be effected with but slight commotion. Already, indeed, any who believe in the scriptures, in the story of the fall of our first parents, in the miraculous birth of Christ, in His death as our redemption price, in His resurrection as our redeemer to set mankind free from the original penalty by restitution, etc.—whoever thus believes is already looked upon as an old fogy, a back number, stupid or ignorant, or both.

Let us not be afraid of such criticisms; let us stand for the Lord and for His word at any cost. The Lord's favor in the end and the peace and comfort meanwhile will far more than offset all the unpleasant things that may be said respecting us in the present time. "Greater is he that is for us than all they that be against us." God, His plan, and His book which reveals that plan, will be found triumphant eventually, and, as the scriptures declare, the wisdom of the worldly wise shall perish and the folly of their course will be manifested.

We do not claim to be able to meet higher criticism on its own grounds, we do not claim to be able to prove from outward evidence the full truthfulness of all the statements of the Bible and its divine inspiration; we do not claim to be able to read the rocks and to explain every feature in full accord with the Divine Word; but we do claim that the scriptures give internal evidences which are satisfactory to all those who appreciate them. We do claim that the plan of God set forth in the scriptures, when rightly understood, is most reasonable, most just, most wise, most loving—that no scheme which man could possibly invent could compare in beauty and reasonableness with the plan which God has already arranged and of which the scriptures are His expression.

I received a letter last week which illustrates this internal power of the scriptures when rightly understood. It is from one of our colporteurs engaged in circulating the Millennial Dawn volumes. I will read from his letter: "Believing that it might be of interest to you I will relate how the truth of the Bible as set forth in Millennial Dawn, affected a very rank, outspoken infidel, an old French doctor 85 years old, a reader of the infidel journal, 'Truth Seeker,' and an admirer of Robert G. Ingersoll, of whom I was warned repeatedly that he was poison to all preachers and religious workers.

"Unheeding the warnings I called on him. He seemed nettled and asked if we taught that the Bible is the inspired Word of God. When I replied affirmatively he wanted nothing more to do with me or with the book, said that he had enough of Christianity, that its whole foundation is a fraud and a fake from first to last.

"I asked proofs, which led him to a weak attempt to entangle the Biblical records, the Levitical priesthood, etc. Soon he left the Bible and attacked modern theology, Christian (?) governments, etc. I soon showed that his arguments touched neither the Bible nor the Dawn and presently got his attention. He bought the first volume, 'The Plan of the Ages,' has become deeply interested in Bible study, and is selling the books for me among his friends. Really words can scarcely express his great change of this man's disposition, once haughty and sarcastic, he is now docile and friendly."

From this standpoint we may see the force of the divine statement through the prophet, "Your ways are not as My ways, nor your plans as My plans, said the Lord; for as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways and My plans higher than your plans." Isa. lv:8-9. Those who come to see the scriptures in their true light find no poetical exaggeration in the statemens of the hymn, "It satisfies my longings as nothing else can do."

"Ye Are Not Your Own."

This first clause of our text would be meaningless if the purchase feature of the second clause were eliminated. As it is it stands in full accord as part of the divine testimony respecting what has been accomplished by our Lord, and the influence which a knowledge of this should have upon all those who have "an ear to hear" the good tidings. We have already pointed out that the secondary part of Mediator's work is that, after having satisfied divine justice by paying the death penalty that rested upon man, the Mediator's work will be to bring mankind back into accord with God. This work of Christ belongs to the next age, the millennial age, and respecting it the Apostle Peter declares, "Times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord, and He shall send Jesus Christ who before was preached unto you, whom the heavens must receive (retain) until the times of restitution of all things that God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began." Acts iii:19-21.

During that glorious millennial age the great Mediator, Jesus Christ, and His faithful followers, the church "whose names are written in heaven," glorified as His bride, will bless the redeemed world with every good favor necessary to them. All shall be brought to a knowledge of the truth, all shall be taught of God through the great Mediator, all shall be helped out of the weaknesses and imperfections which came upon them through the fall, and which in many instances were accentuated and increased by personal wrong doing; all shall be sympathetically dealt with with a view to making them understand fully and distinctly the love of God which passeth all understanding, and that the love of God is being manifested through the Redeemer and through no other channel—that there is no other name given under heaven and among men whereby we must be saved, and that obedience to the great Immanuel will be the only terms upon which they can hope to return to their "former estate." Ezek. xvi:55.

The blessing thus extended through the Mediator will first reach to all the living families of the earth, and "the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the face of the great deep." Eventually the same blessing shall be extended to all who "sleep in the dust of the earth." Dan. xii:2. As our dear Redeemer declared, "The hour is coming when all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man and shall come forth." Some who in the present life have passed their trial acceptably and have been approved by God as overcomers will come forth to the life resurrection, and the remainder, disapproved, will come forth unto the judgment resurrection (R. V.) The latter will be the great mass of mankind, since only a few at the present time have this testimony that they please God.

These Few Are the "Saints."

But, some may inquire, why preach that Christ's work for the world as Mediator belongs to the coming age—to the millennial age? Why should we not think that it belongs exclusively to the present age? Why should not our Lord have begun at once the work of reconciling the world to God as soon as He had finished the great atonement sacrifice? These are fair questions and they deserve a candid answer, which we will give them.

The apostle declares that God was, in Christ, reconciling the world to Himself, not imputing their transgressions unto Him—but imputing those transgressions resulting from the Adamic fall to Christ, who died for those transgressions, and who redeemed Adam and us all from their condemnation. The work of reconciliation from God's standpoint in a large sense is one work, but divided into two parts. First, God would find a "godly seed," a little flock of a peculiar class, very zealous for truth and righteousness. These in the divine plan are to have a special salvation, different from others of the race; they are to be selected first, much as we would separate the cream from the milk. This cream class the Lord has designed—yea, says the apostle, has fore-ordained "from before the foundation of the world"—to be a special class, to receive special favors at His hands, including a participation in the divine nature and in the heavenly glory, honor and immortality, as the bride and joint-heirs of Christ.

Second, the divine arrangement is that when this special class shall have thus been glorified as the members of Christ and his joint-heirs, then the second step in the work of reconciliation shall proceed, and all the families of the earth shall be brought to most favorable conditions for character development and testing, with a view to their attaining the "restitution" to all that was lost—human perfection, and those rights and privileges and blessings as earthly children of God, for whom he will prepare the whole earth as a "paradise of God," still grander and more complete than was the Eden garden that was lost through sin.

From this scriptural standpoint we can see distinctly why the Lord places the blessing of the world in the next age and the blessing of the church class in the present age. The trials and difficulties and oppositions of the world, the flesh and and the adversary of the present time contribute to the polishing and testing experiences by which the Lord will prove and separate those accounted worthy to be joint heirs with His Son in the kingdom—the "Bride, the Lamb's wife." The blessing of the world delays until this gathering, testing and glorification of the church is accomplished, because the church is to be associated with Christ in the millennial age blessings; hence they are called the kingdom class, as when our Lord declared, "Fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." This is the same kingdom mentioned by the Lord in the prayer taught His disciples, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is done in heaven." It is this kingdom for which we wait, "The kingdom of God's dear Son," which is to institute a reign of righteousness, restraining evil, promoting good and eventually blessing and uplifting to perfection all who will obey the laws of that kingdom under full enlightenment and assistance, and will destroy in the second death all who will not thus come into accord with the Lord.—Acts iii:23.

"Your Reasonable Service."

The scriptures declare that the majority of mankind are at the present time so blinded by selfishness, ignorance, prejudice, etc., as to be incapable of discerning the divine plan. The apostle specifically declares this, saying, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not." Our Lord intimated that those who will be able to see the truth in the present time are few when He said, "Blessed are your eyes for they see and your ears for they hear;" and again, "He that hath an ear let him hear." While it is a part of our privilege to tell the good tidings to every hearing ear, to show the wonderful love of God to every eye that can see, nevertheless it is not for us to feel unkindly toward those who can neither see nor hear, but rather to rejoice that God's love and wisdom are such that the divine plan shall ultimately include in its provisions the opening of all the blind eyes and the unstopping of all the deaf ears, to the intent that all may know the Lord from the least to the greatest, that to Him their knees shall bow.—Isa. xxxv:5; Phil. ii:10.

In the meantime during this gospel age, as our text implies, those who do see the divine arrangement, who do see that we are bought with a price, who do see God's arrangement for giving eternal life to those who will obey the Mediator—all such should realize that they are "not their own," that they were bought with a price; that their lives and all they have, therefore, belongs to the Lord. The apostle in another place, addressing this class, says, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God (in your redemption), that ye present your bodies living sacrifices, holy, acceptable to God, your reasonable service." (Rom. xii:1.) Such a service, such a life of sacrifice, is reasonable only to those who see something, at least, of "the lengths and breadths and heights and depths" of the love of God; to others—the world, including merely nominal Christians and moralists—the matter is different. Because they do not see by faith, they cannot walk by faith, and from their standpoint the sacrificing of present interests in favor of a life and glory and honor unseen, would be an unreasonable service. Such are not "called." "The Lord knoweth them that are His."

By and by when the world comes to "see," when it comes to walk by sight and to have practical evidences and demonstrations of the power of God, and the will of God, the world's responsibility will proportionately increase, and eventually by the close of the millennial age it will be their "reasonable service" also to consider that they are "not their own," to appreciate that being bought with the precious blood of Christ their lives and everything they have should be freely at the Lord's disposal. Nevertheless the Lord will not then accept sacrifices as He does now. The privilege of sacrificing is a special and peculiar one, as it is written, "Now (during this gospel age or day) is the acceptable time"—now is the time when God will receive these living sacrifices, accounted holy and acceptable through the merit of Christ. The holy angels have no such opportunities, neither will the holy people of the world in the next age have opportunities for sacrificing, so far as anything in the scriptures would indicate. This special privilege of realizing the Lord's favor and participating with Christ in the sacrifices, self-denials, etc., in the present time belongs only to the church class of this gospel age, and the rewards to this church class are correspondingly greater than any others God has ever given, and, so far as we know, will ever give—glory, honor, immortality, the "divine nature."—II. Pet. i:4.

Dear brethren and sisters, let us who have had the eyes of our understanding opened to some extent, watch and pray that they may open wider and still wider to all the grandeur and beauty of our Heavenly Father's character and plan; and let us show our appreciation of His great love wherewith He loved us in our devotion to Him; and let the words of our mouths and the meditation of our hearts and, so far as in us lies, all the conduct of life, be such as will have the divine approval; so that ultimately by the Lord's grace we may be accounted worthy; that, having suffered with Christ in this present time, we may share also in the glorious time to follow—the kingdom of glory.

The Lord willing, at some not distant date, we will consider the friuts of the ransom, or the lengths and breadths of the salvation secured by the great atonement—sacrifice. I close with the apostle's words, "We thus judge that if one died for all then were all dead; and that we who live should henceforth live not unto ourselves, but unto Him who died for us."—II. Cor. v:14.

MORE TROUBLE IN SELECT COUNCIL

Director Bigelow's Vacation Cut Short by Opposition to His Plans.

FIGHT AGAIN NEXT MONDAY

Select councilmen believe when Director Bigelow returns to attend the meeting of the finance committee tomorrow he will be forced to remain in the city to prepare for the meeting of select council next Monday. A prominent leader of the opposition faction in select council said yesterday the administration would be compelled to make a fight in select next week to prevent the defeat of the ordinances of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, which were referred to a special committee consisting of five members of the opposition. He said Bigelow and Verner intend, if possible, to withdraw the bills from the special committee and pass them, but at present they do not have enough votes.

If Bigelow should leave the city again this week and allow the select council meeting to go by default, it would give the opposition an opportunity to take the ordinances from the committee and kill them, and also possibly withdraw the Hall traction and lighting ordinances from the corporations committee and pass them. Bigelow will be forced to stay in Pittsburgh to prevent any action on the Hall bills, even should he not be able to put the Pittsburgh Railways Company bills through.

There are several other important ordinances which Bigelow must guard and which might be defeated in his absence. On the table of select council is an ordinance providing for engaging additional employes in the filtration bureau and for additional employes in the water bureau to install meters. The knowledge that a strong opposition threatens every measure it proposes requires the administration to be extremely watchful, with the chances in favor of the opposition, because it is not believed the administration can afford to constantly employ the same means which pulled the bond ordinance through.

Common council is also in a dangerous mood, and a revolt is promised in that branch at the first opportunity. Bigelow has several favorite bills to be presented to common at the next meeting, providing for the widening of Sixth avenue and Webster avenue, which are said to be a part of the traction scheme. Some property owners in Webster avenue have prepared a petition which will be presented to councils protesting against the widening, and they have employed lawyers to defend their case in councils and in court.

Bigelow will be busy tomorrow drilling the members of the finance committee. Controller Larkin is preparing a lengthy statement setting forth his views on the bond issue, which he will publish tomorrow after the meeting of the finance committee.

INTERESTING NEWS WAS IN THE SUNDAY GAZETTE

By Difference in Time the Fact of the Fall of Liao-Yang Was Printed Before It Happened.

By the difference in time between the occident and orient the Pittsburgh Sunday Gazette was able to print yesterday morning the fact that at 9 o'clock yesterday morning the Japanese had occupied Liao-Yang after probably one of the greatest battles in history. Details of the fighting all along the long line of combatants were given with a map, which showed the positions of the various armies as they advanced or retreated. The loss of Stakelberg's corps, the killing of Sisters of Mercy and the fact that some of the fighters were so exhausted they slept on the firing line were told of so that, above the dry and matter-of-fact reports of actualities, there was much description in the various accounts which The Sunday Gazette received and printed.

Hundreds of representative citizens gave a banquet in honor of Judge Charles F. McKenna in Pittsburgh, and this interesting evening was fully described. There was a report that Carnegie and H. J. PATRIOTISM

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia.

The confirmed dyspeptic "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier, and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are promptly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

"After I received the advice which you gave me in regard to my treatment," writes Geo. Dorner, Esq., of 1017 Pulaski Street, Baltimore, Maryland, "I used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' according to directions. After using four bottles I considered myself cured, as I have not felt any symptoms since. Had tried almost all remedies that I heard of that were good for dyspepsia, but without relief. Finally, I became discouraged, and wrote to you for advice, with the above result."

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, Sept. 4.—Joe Kelley's Red legs gave the most weird exhibition in the field against the Pirates today that has been witnessed on the local grounds in many moons, and yet they managed to play a 12-inning tie game.

When the fact is taken into consideration that errors were piled up by the locals at an alarming state from beginning to end and that they made four consecutive misplays in one inning, it shows what a remarkable game Jack Harper pitched.

Harper, with anything like support, would have won his game without an effort. As it was he was compelled to pitch the best game of his career as a Red. Few pitchers would have stood up under such a fusillade of errors as the Reds made today. But no matter what happened Harper kept pitching, and the result was that he got away without having a defeat charged to him.

Sam Leever was on the rubber for the Dreyfussites and was very lucky. He was hit harder than he ever placed the rattan on the seat of some boys' panties in his school teaching days and yet he was hurt very little. True, in the first four innings the Reds scored four runs, but after that they did not get a smell, though he was hit continuously. In fact with anything like a lucky break the locals should have had eight or ten runs instead of four in the game.

After the sixth inning that lame wing began to loosen up considerably, and Sam proved a puzzle at critical stages and after the ninth inning it was a foregone conclusion that the game would result in a tie, as it was dark and both pitchers had lots of speed and base-hits were very scarce.

The Reds had things their own way for six innings, but those Pirates got busy in the seventh and in the ninth tied the score. The opening round netted one for the locals. Then Dolan walked and he and Odwell played the hit and run successfully, Smith fumbling the ball and Dolan scored.

In the second Corcoran led off with a triple and two hits followed, which scored him, but that ended it for the time being. In the third things broke better and two runs were scored after two were out, Odwell and Steinfeldt making doubles and Corcoran a single.

In the seventh the visitors got busy. After one was out Huggins allowed Beaumont's grounder to go through him and the man on the base went to third. Ritchey singled and one run came home. Wagner forced Ritchey but stole second and then Bransfield singled and Beaumont and Wagner came home.

In the ninth Kelley took care of Leach's grounder. Then he fumbled Beaumont's grounder. Beaumont foolishly tried to steal second and was caught. Then Huggins made a mess of Ritchey's grounder. Corcoran threw Wagner's grounder wide of the mark. Bransfield hit to Huggins, who fumbled, while the tying run scored, but recovered in time to nail Wagner at the plate.

The next three innings were uneventful, as it was too dark for either to hit and the game was finally called in the twelfth, with the score a tie. The score:

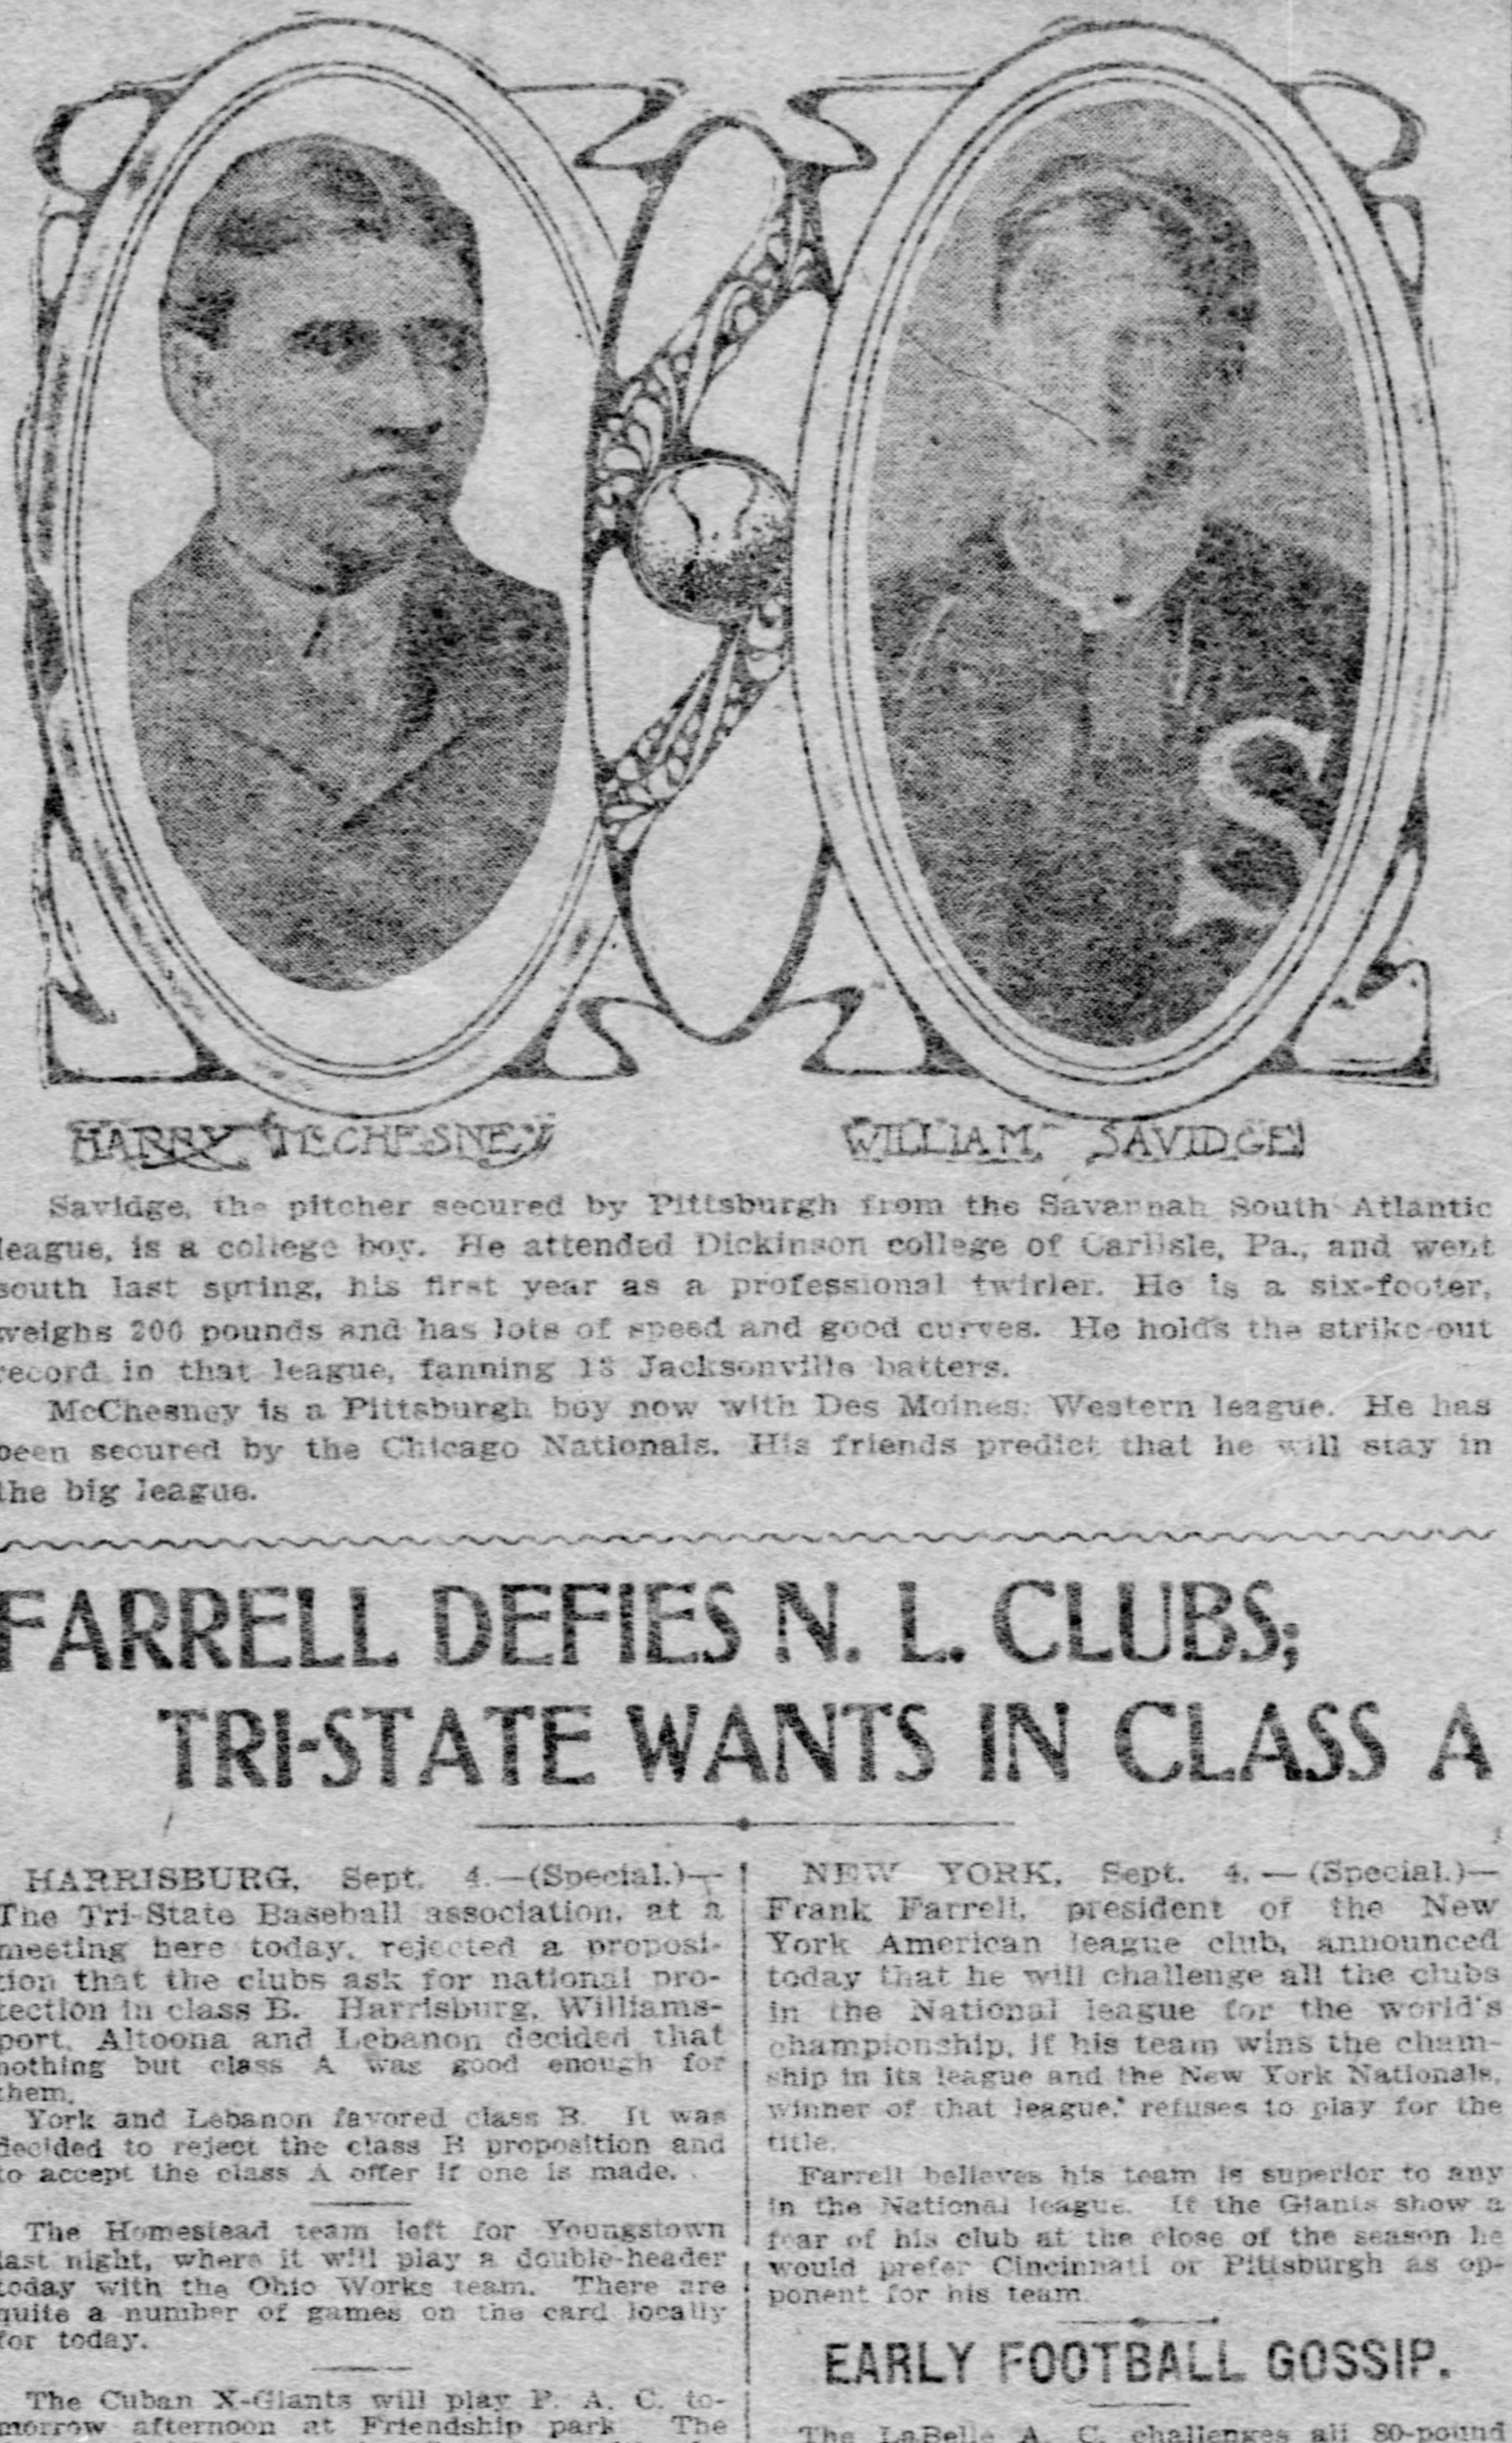
LOCAL FANS INTERESTED IN THESE BALL PLAYERS



HARRY McCHESNEY WILLIAM SAVIDGE

Savidge, the pitcher secured by Pittsburgh from the Savannah South Atlantic league, is a college boy. He attended Dickinson college of Carlisle, Pa., and went south last spring, his first year as a professional twirler. He is a six-footer, weighs 200 pounds and has lots of speed and good curves. He holds the strike-out record in that league, fanning 18 Jacksonville batters.

McChesney is a Pittsburgh boy now with Des Moines, Western league. He has been secured by the Chicago Nationals. His friends predict that he will stay in the big league.

FARRELL DEFIES N. L. CLUBS; TRI-STATE WANTS IN CLASS A

HARRISBURG, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—The Tri-State Baseball association, at a meeting here today, rejected a proposition that the clubs ask for national protection in class B. Harrisburg, Williamsport, Altoona and Lebanon decided that nothing but class A was good enough for them.

York and Lebanon favored class B. It was decided to reject the class B proposition and to accept the class A offer if one is made.

The Homestead team left for Youngstown last night, where it will play a double-header today with the Ohio Works team. There are quite a number of games on the card locally for today.

The Cuban X-Giants will play P. A. C. tomorrow afternoon at Friendship park. The Cubans finished a series Saturday with the Philadelphia Giants at Atlantic City for the colored championship.

Washington and Waynesburg play two games today at Washington. East Liverpool, which was scheduled to play at Washington Thursday and Friday, cancelled. Manager Brownlee has the dates open.

Penn Park has released Pitcher Frank Foreman, the old Baltimore leaguer, whose arm has recently been troubling him, and has signed Roy Evans, late of the Wilmington and Williamsport teams.

IN MEMORY OF DR. MAYER.

Tributes Paid to the Character of the Dead Rabbi of the Eighth Street Temple.

Men of distinction in the work of Judaism in America, ministers of the gospel and laymen, paid tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Lippmann Mayer in the Eighth Street temple last night, of which congregation he had been rabbi for 30 years. The principal address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch of Chicago, rabbi of the largest Jewish congregation in America, professor in the chair of literature in the University of Chicago and reputed to be the most learned and eloquent exponent of the Jewish faith in America, and as such he was introduced by Dr. Levy.

The Rev. Dr. David Phillipson of Cincinnati spoke on the virtues of Dr. Mayer as he found them through personal association with him. The Rev. Dr. E. R. Donahoo, who though of the Christian faith, had been a close friend of Dr. Mayer for many years, spoke feelingly on the high character of the man. The Hon. Josiah Cohen spoke on behalf of the congregation, expressing for the members the appreciation of their loss. The Rev. Michael Freid, a local rabbi, told of the valuable guidance the deceased had offered the young Jewish clergy. Dr. Levy delivered the last address, expressing in rare eloquence the appreciation of the responsibilities which had devolved upon him in assuming the position in the congregaton which Dr. Mayer had for so many years illustriously filled.

Telegrams of regret and condolence were read from the Rev. Dr. Felix Adler of New York and the Rev. Dr. Leon Harrison of St. Louis, while a letter of eulogy on the deceased was read from the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young.

PICNICS IN THE PARKS.

Extra Attractions Will Be Given at All the Trolley Resorts Today.

Calhoun, Kennywood, Southern, Oakwood and West View parks had band concerts yesterday. Kennywood had Nirella's Fourteenth regiment band, with several of the band members as soloists. Kraft, the slack wire walker, was the free attraction outside the steeplechase building. Calhoun's concerts were given by the Third regiment band, led by Jean De Backer, with Messrs. Hilaire Motte, flugelhorn, and John Fuge, tuba, as soloists. Parish, the singing ventriloquist, and the Troubadour Four gave the vocal parts of the program.

Oakwood had the Grand Army band, directed by E. Schmidt, with solos by L. Herback, piccolo, and a duet by Messrs. Ashman and Hausser. Dupree and Dupree, a clever team of entertainers, were the vocalists. R. W. Hell had the Charleroi concert band at Southern park and gave two concerts. The musical McCulloughs, two singers, were the special attraction. There will be free picnics besides dancing at the trolley resorts today. Kennywood will have Graffelder's orchestra, Kraft, the slack wire performer, and the H. J. Lindsay quartet. Calhoun will have Nirella's orchestra, Oakwood the Mozart musicians and Southern Hughes' orchestra. West View park, on the East street line of the Pittsburgh Railways Company's Allegheny cars, which had the Second Brigade band for concerts yesterday, will have picnics. Frank S. Colburn, as "Uncle Sam," will lecture.

STRIVE FOR CONVENTION.

Committee Organized to Bring the Silver Anniversary Gathering of the A. F. of L. to Pittsburgh.

Organization was effected last night by the Pittsburgh committee to secure the silver anniversary convention of the American Federation of Labor for Pittsburgh in 1905. The committee met in Arnfeldt's hall, 1119 Penn avenue, and elected the following permanent officers: George A. Hess, chairman; J. J. McKee, vice chairman; H. C. Williams, secretary; N. Courts, financial secretary; J. W. Rankin, treasurer; John Powell, John E. Taylor and A. Hunter, finance committee, and F. L. Koch, Edward Welch and C. E. Langland, transportation committee.

The committee is composed of delegates from all local unions in the county, each local being entitled to one delegate. It is the intention of the committee to secure the co-operation of all civic organizations in the county to bring the convention here.

The American Federation of Labor was organized in Pittsburgh 25 years ago, and has not convened here since. The advent of the silver anniversary convention adds sentimental weight in bringing it here. The convention will be held in San Francisco in November this year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Frank Farrell, president of the New York American league club, announced today that he will challenge all the clubs in the National league for the world's championship, if his team wins the championship in its league and the New York Nationals, winner of that league, refuses to play for the title.

Farrell believes his team is superior to any in the National league. If the Giants show a fear of his club at the close of the season he would prefer Cincinnati or Pittsburgh as opponent for his team.

EASY FOR SPECULATORS TO ADVANCE PRICES OF STOCKS

This Condition Due to Lack of Selling Pressure, Ease of Money and Ability to Carry Securities at Minimum Expense.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—There has been little change in conditions governing the stock markets in the last week. Successive sessions of the exchange have demonstrated the lack of selling pressure on the market. This fact, coupled with the ease in money and the ability to carry stocks at a minimum expense, have resulted in making advances in prices of all securities, good, bad or indifferent, a comparatively easy matter. So far the advance in prices has been due to the working of the money market toward equalizing of the rates of income between dividend payers and the loaning rates which money commands. Investors who held stocks through the trying periods of 1903 have up to the present been not at all disposed to sell.

As money is accumulating and remaining unemployed except at unremunerative rates, there is more than a normal desire to invest such capital in stocks and bonds of undoubted worth. The absence of selling pressure on the market has left open a clear path for the speculative contingent, which is never content with a full or stagnant market. It has been found a comparatively easy matter to advance prices. For the last six or eight weeks the history of the daily movements resolves itself into one successive story of higher prices, involving defeat of the party working against the upward trend and finally the abandonment of the position of the bear element.

Treated With Indifference.

Attention must also be directed to the seeming indifference with which the speculative community treats the news of decreased railroad earnings, strained relations between rival iron and steel manufacturers, the depression in the textile, coal, lumber and merchandising industries. What is the reason for these advances? The question is quickly answered that Wall street is discounting an entirely new situation, involving improved trade conditions, better business, increased earnings and as a final result larger dividends. The exponents of this theory state for example that the decreased earnings in Reading can be lost sight of in the belief that at some time in the future dividends will be begun on the common stock of that corporation. Similarly, the argument is used to explain the activity and strength in Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. But leaving the technical side of the stock market out of the question, and considering the conditions and prospects of future business, which in the end is the finally determining factor, one asks whether the commerce and industry of the country is shaping itself toward enlargement and expansion.

Sentiment as expressed in speculative quarters states very plainly its opinion of the question. The advance in security values to a point where serious reflection ought now to be given their value has foreshadowed unequivocally an improvement in trade. It is argued that in the present depression it has been fairly well demonstrated that practically all the standard issues have been able to pay their dividends without impairing the treasury surplus, that with the additional wealth and business from the crops raised this year there will be little doubt that the dividend earning powers of the large corporations will be strengthened. As a result of these beliefs no cognizance is taken of the incidents now developing which are sapping the financial strength of many corporations.

Apparently No Tangible Reasons.

The argument is further continued that last year, when prices were declining so rapidly, the market was discounting at that time the danger of reduced dividends, but now that the test has been made and the outlook appears brighter prices ought to seek a level more in conformity with the value of money. Few will explain why the outlook in trade appears brighter. There are no tangible reasons to be given, apparently, for the tenor of the explanations simply indicate the belief that sentiment is better. Sentiment goes a long way to improve business, for a great deal of success in business depends upon the hope and confidence thrown into the enterprise. Reference is made also to the fact that the crops are giving promise of being abundant. Herein is the first tangible development making for improved business conditions.

There is a surprising unanimity of opinion among those who have espoused the cause of higher prices that the crop of corn will offset the damage sustained in the wheat crop. There will be a large crop of corn and cotton, it is assured, and the benefits accruing therefrom will more than compensate for the shortage in the country's wheat supplies. On these staples there is danger that too much reliance will be placed, judging by the prices which now prevail.

Operators Have Little Success in the Lower Southwest Fields

Developments in the lower southwest fields during the past week failed to discover any new producing territory or bring in anything better than ordinary producers. Fewer wells were completed than has been the custom for many months and the indications point strongly to a curtailment of development work in the deep sand districts in West Virginia.

For some time the wells completed have been growing smaller in size and the list of nonproducers has been increasing. By some it is thought that the reason for reducing operations in the deep sand districts is chargeable to the light average production of the new wells and the increasing uncertainty of getting anything but a duster.

In the Mannington district, Marion county, there is a slight improvement in development work. Quite recently some very satisfactory producers have been found in that locality and they have stimulated operations. South of Mannington in the vicinity of the C. S. Pizer farm, on which the South Penn Oil Company got a good Gordon producer some two weeks ago, there is a little new work starting.

The Littleton district, Wetzel county, is not doing as well as was expected. With the exception of the South Penn Oil Company's No. 6 on the George W. Soles farm all of the late completions have been light or dry. Near Burton, in the same county, the Maxon sand development furnished two average producers, about 20 barrels each, for that district.

Along the eastern edge of Tyler county there has been some work completed, but the wells all came in light and are not such as to create a desire to drill in their respective localities. The Colonial Oil Company got a 15-barrel pumper at its No. 6 on the White heirs' farm and the McKelvy Oil Company got a five-barrel pumper at No. 4 on the T. B. Watkins farm. The Carter Oil Company got a small pumper at its No. 3 on the Noah Booker farm. All three are located along the eastern edge of the county.

In the Wick district, in the same county, the late wells have come in light. The gusher period of this pool is a thing of the past. During the week four wells were completed, one a good producer, two light and one a duster. This pool has the distinction of having presented the largest producer of the current year. It is the Carter Oil company's No. 6 on the J. W. Ankrom farm and is still holding up at 280 barrels a day.

In the Salem district, Harrison county, there has been quite a falling off in operations and very little new work starting. Of the deep sand districts this has made the poorest showing for a month past. The average production of the new wells has not exceeded 15 barrels a day, and in addition a number have been drilled through the sand and failed to find any oil.

Ritchie, Pleasants and Wood counties have nothing new to offer. In Pleasants operators in the Calcutta district are finding some good wells, but they are all located inside of defined territory and of interest to those only who are developing the territory.

In the Yellow creek district, in Calhoun county, there is the most activity of any district in West Virginia. Considerable work of an experimental nature is starting on Yellow creek and it is possible that the producing limits as now defined may be extended. The field had its first fatal visitation from fire during the week, when six persons lost their lives and others sustained terrible burns from which they may not recover.

For more than a month the Big Lime district, near Milton, Cabell county, has not been able to present anything but dusters. On last Thursday the Harshbarger Oil and Gas Company drilled in its No. 2 on the C. C. Beckett farm and got a producer that produced 100 barrels the first 24 hours after it was drilled into the pay. While it is a very satisfactory producer and makes the twelfth in the pool, it does not enlarge the producing area.

In Putnam county, adjoining, the St. Albans Oil and Gas Company drilled its test on the Corbley farm, located near Hurricane, through all sands and found nothing. This is the second failure this company has encountered in that locality. In the same county the Holley Oil and Gas Company is getting ready to drill a second test in the vicinity of the gasser it completed in the salt sand last month.

On the Ohio side the only district to supply a large producer during the week was the new development on Limestone run, Jefferson county. It is the Jefferson County Oil Company's second test on the James McBride farm. When first drilled in its showed for a 150-barrel producer, but increased its production to 20 barrels an hour, and at the end of the week was holding up at 460 barrels a day. The size of the well is such as to give an impetus to operations in that locality, but the territory in the immediate vicinity is under lease to the Jefferson County company and it will probably conduct operations conservatively.

Down on Wolf creek, Morgan county, the new wells are coming in light and not a few of them failures. The large producers of a few weeks ago have declined and are taking a place with the pumpers. In the Keener sand district, northwest of Woodsfield, there is some new work starting, but the territory has been found to be very spotted.

In the Nineveh district, Greene county, Pa., the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company made a good strike early in the week. It is this company's test on the J. B. Carter farm, located 800 feet southwest of the same company's No. 2 on the Wolf heirs' farm. The well produced 250 barrels the first 24 hours and is still holding up at 200 barrels a day.

A number of wells have been completed in that district since the same company got its good producer, some months ago, on the Dr. W. S. Throckmorton farm, but none were so large as the well just drilled in.

The thing that was the most gratifying to producers and operators alike during the week was the advance of the credit balance market from $1.50 to $1.53. Oil men are hopeful that other advances may follow and make it profitable to develop some of the territory that is capable of supplying light wells. A higher market will be an inducement to renew active operations in the shallow sand districts. In a measure it would stimulate the wildcatter to look for new pools outside of the old defined limits.

LONDON MARKET IMPROVES.

Public Not Doing Much Buying, But Is Taking More Interest—Reaction in American Railways.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(Copyright Cable.)—Broken by holidays though the last week has been, some progress has been made toward better markets all along the line. Though the public has not yet come to making purchases in earnest, it evidently, as has already been remarked, is taking more interest in things, which is something to be thankful for after the long period of apathy which has existed.

After maintaining its recent strength until Wednesday a reaction set in in the American railway market, but that could hardly be said to mean much of a setback, being attributed to the closing of accounts prior to the two days' holiday in New York and the closing of the London stock exchange tomorrow. Quite a large number of transactions were remarked here in the last day or two, but they appear to have been mainly sales, as the stocks concerned have most of them given way.

In the early part of the week money was in considerable demand, owing to the end of the month and stock exchange requirements, calling in of balances by banks for window dressing purposes and the payment into the Bank of England of a large amount of Japanese money, of which the market had had the use. It was consequently found necessary to have recourse to the bank, which lent a considerable amount at 3½ per cent.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN LOCAL MARKETS

Flour Is Lower—Salmon More Active at Reduced Prices. Coffee Easier.

Trading was of the hand to mouth character in commercial markets here last week. This is usually true of the week just prior to the first Monday in September. The grocery market was comparatively quiet. Flour was steady up to the last day and then a reduction of 10 cents was announced on spring and winter patents. The usual between seasons quietness was noticeable in most lines of canned goods. Salmon again occupied the place of interest, although the movement of red Alaska from first hand was not so free as the week before. There was increased movement of stock from jobbers' hands as a result of the reduction in salmon prices. Demand for this kind of stock has been improving also since the association announced lower quotations on the best stock. Sardines are quiet. The coffee market weakened somewhat toward the close of the week. Reports indicate increases in the world's visible supply. The total increase of this kind is put at 981,000 bags for August. The approximated total arrivals of mild coffee in the United States and Europe during August were 550,000 bags, comparing with 250,000 bags in August last year. Brazilian markets are reported easier.

Produce business was dull. Home grown stock of all kinds has been thrown upon the market and commission merchants, of course, feel its effects. Cantaloupes became much cheaper toward the end of the week and were reduced in price again Saturday. Peaches were in good request and the supply was ample. Pears were active and firm. Plums showed weak, with more than enough on hand. Onions eased off a good deal and so did sweet potatoes. Indications point to a still higher butter market, the market having held firm all week. Cheese held steady at prevailing quotations. It is thought that eggs have touched top prices, owing to the fact that the fall supply will soon begin to come in.

The past week was one of seasonable advancement for the corn crop. According to reports rains did great good. It is also stated that the corn crop in the central regions, as well as farther north, is now forward enough to be free from damage by frost. A large crop of oats is being threshed and it seems to find a ready market now. Hay showed easier toward the week's close and quotations were cut down Saturday. Clover hay is now bringing as much as best timothy. Receipts were pretty heavy all week, especially on hay, and this accounts for the break in the market. Corn was not so high as the previous week, ear offering at 67 cents and shelled at 62½ cents on 'change Saturday.

HAY, GRAIN AND FEED.

Receipts bulletined Saturday: Pennsylvania lines, 69 cars hay, 23 cars oats, 8 cars corn, 1 car feed, 2 cars corn and oats; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad, 4 cars hay, 1 car oats; Baltimore & Ohio railroad, 18 cars hay, 1 car corn.

The new things are coming in FALL things are ready in the world of fashion—and they're coming in as fast as steam can bring them from the metropolis and other fashion and manufacturing centers. We are getting ready for the autumn season in all departments. Are you planning? September is the first fall month—and so, you see—the fall season is too near at hand to be disregarded. How pleasing it is to look at the new goods—and how they cultivate and create the desire for possession. Daily visits to the store will afford you pleasure and profit. Yes, the pendulum of summer is swinging fast—and all over the store you may see signs of autumn as the new things are beginning to accentuate their presence.

Shoe department moved to second floor

(Just one flight up—or a step through Fifth ave. entrance—and there you are.)

THE new quarters are much larger and more commodious. Everything is new—shelving, fixtures, stock and even the prices—for they are newly little. We want everybody to make the acquaintance of our new shoe store—the largest in Pittsburgh. With this object in view we forego profits all this week, and accordingly offer the following bargains.

Special for women—1,000 pairs of our new fall $3.50 women's patent leather shoes with dull matt kid tops, welt soles and Cuban heels; all genuine hand-welt sewed—Tuesday only 2.25

Special for misses and children—our regular $2 and $2.25 new fall lines of misses' and children's kid and patent leather shoes, lace and button, low and spring heels—Tuesday only at 1.45

Special for men—choice from 6 styles of our $3 and $3.50 new fall men's shoes, in box and velour calf, patent leather and vici kid; all hand-sewed welts—Tuesday only at 2.25

Special for boys and youths—our regular $2.25 new fall boys' and youths' shoes, in finest box calf with heavy waterproof double soles, genuine Goodyear welt sewed—Tuesday only at 1.50

Three cases of women's fall weight ribbed vests and pants—all hand-finished—on sale tomorrow at 50c

New styles of dressing sacques and kimonos—plain, lace and ribbon trimmed, in solid colors or Persian figures — all sizes at only 98c

Beautiful embroideries underpriced

HERE'S another practical demonstration of the superior purchasing advantages enjoyed by "The Big Store." The small drygoods dealer couldn't buy these embroideries at the prices we offer them to you for.

500 pieces of dainty swiss and nainsook corset cover flouncings are embraced in the purchase. They're embroidered on fine cloth in exquisite designs, such as roses, teneriffe effects, medallions and scroll patterns. The cloth is 15 to 17 in. wide and many of the patterns have ribbon beading at the top—only 1½ yards are required to make a dainty and serviceable corset cover—the assortment also includes many large showy patterns for making pretty skirt flouncings. All are positively 39c to 50c flouncings—our sale price 25c yd

Another very special offer—fine swiss, nainsook and cambric edgings, 4 to 8 in. wide; also pretty insertions, 2 to 4 in. wide; all are new patterns with good fast edges, which will stand frequent washing—the regular 25c embroideries, special for tomorrow at 10c and 15c yd

Fall dress fabrics

FROM almost every textile-producing center of the two continents are daily arriving. We've already quite a representative showing of Autumn weaves—and we start in with special values right from the very dawn of the new season.

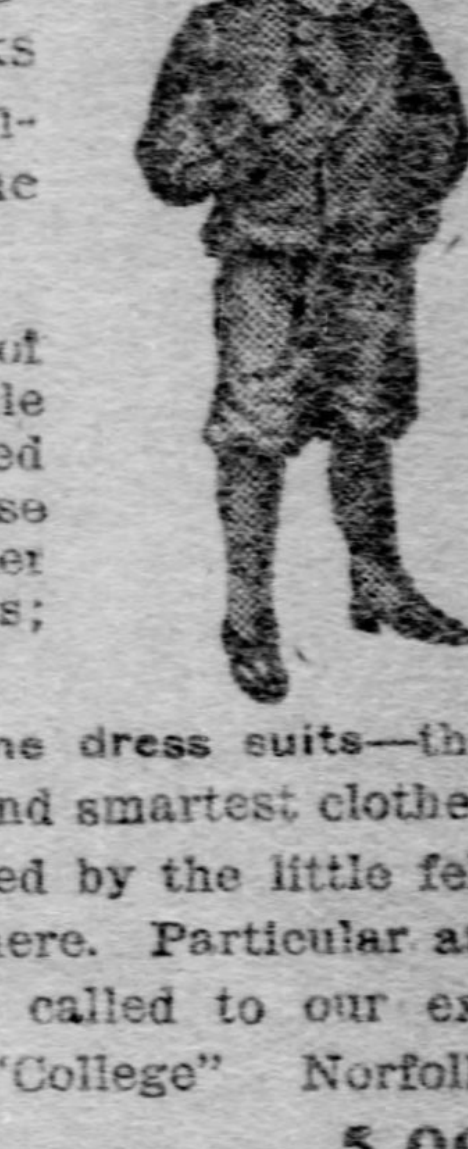
7000 yards pure English mohair brilliantines—plain and fancy effects in black and all colors, together with a splendid line of pebble brilliant—all bright goods which will sell later on for 50c yd.—special price for this sale 39c yd

An exceptional value in a 52 in. broadcloth—strictly pure wool fabric in the most beautiful Fall colorings as well as black—will sell later on at $1.25 per yd., our price for this special sale 69c yd

3400 yards 45 in. pure wool French prunella and satin berber suitings, very handsome fabrics for the early Fall tailored costumes; every new and desirable shade as well as black represented—will sell later on for $1 yd., our special price this sale 75c yd

Exquisite novelty fabrics—representing all the new weaves and color combinations in mirror faced panne zibeline and fancy suitings—these fabrics will sell later on for $1.50, our special price 1.00 yd

New clothes for boys



NEW in fabrics, new in styles, new in every detail; clothes that will please every mother, no matter how particular or how notionate she may be; clothes that will stand the strains and knocks of the tough and lusty lads. Next to these merits follows the important element of—lowest price—in proof of which we submit the following:

Our $3 line of boys' suits furnishes convincing proof of the splendid values we offer for little money. Every suit is guaranteed strictly all wool, well lined, neatly trimmed and perfect fitting. The styles include Buster Brown suits, Russian blouse suits, velvet suits, sailor suits, Norfolk suits with regular or knickerbocker trousers, three-piece suits, single-breasted suits and double-breasted suits; also youths' long trouser suits.

A large special counter of boys' dark oxford and navy blue double-breasted suits, also odds and ends of Norfolk and sailor suits, sizes 3 to 16 in the lot, special for Tuesday at 1.00

Boys' pants special—boys' all wool blue and black cheviot knee pants, with double sewed seams and double cloth seat and knee, strongest patent waistband, all sizes 3 to 16—exceptional value at 50c

Boys' fine dress suits—the nobbiest and smartest clothes ever donned by the little fellows are here. Particular attention is called to our exclusive "College" Norfolk suits, at 5.00

Our initial showing of Fall silks

MAKES quite an imposing display—and yet only a small portion of our new Fall importations have arrived.

Distinctiveness in women's Fall apparel

THERE is not the woman born who does not love and cherish individuality in garb. It is only natural for the daughters of Eve to desire that distinction in dress which characterizes her personality from that of her sisters. The Kaufmann showing of new Fall apparel for women is distinctive—not because of a radical departure from conservative forms, but rather because of the demonstration of their highest possibilities. The stock and the varieties at every grade that are maintained here are so far in excess of those to be found anywhere else, that it is only natural for thousands of women to come to "The Big Store" for their wardrobery supplies, where only scores and hundreds go elsewhere.

Tailored suits at 12.00—which would be good value for $18.00 or $20.00. Despite their low price, these are suits of merit. They're made of medium weight cheviots, in black, blues and browns, novelty suitings and fancy mixtures; in Norfolk coat, tourist coat with belted back and the 27 in. coat style, collar or collarless, inlaid with velvet and silk braid trimmings of the newest shade of burnt orange and onion; trainless skirts, full flaring, box pleated or kilted.

Fall walking suits at 16.50—all the new style features are embodied in these suits. The chic Norfolk style, tight-fitting coat style, and the three-quarter tourist coat style with belted back are all here; made of fine herringbone cheviots, novelty suitings and panne cheviots, in black, blue and brown; collar or collarless effect; ankle length skirts, box pleated, side pleated and kilted—regular $22 suits at 16.50.

Elegant suits at 25.00—women of modish instincts will be delighted with these charming suits. The materials include the newest mannish mixtures, novelty suitings, cheviots, broadcloths and coverts, in the newest blouse style with vest effect, double-breasted coat style, collarless Norfolk with belt or the long loose tourist coat, trimmed with self material, braid and fancy buttons—the coats lined with taffeta silk, the skirts pleated, kilted and strapped—real $35 and $40 tailor-mades at 25.00.

$12 covert coats at 8.50—coats that are "tip-top" in every respect. Included are belted coats, box coats, strapped coats, pleated coats and English top coats, notch collar or collarless effect, lined with silk or satin.
